Blaylock, 2010-01-21 This book presents the structures and stratigraphy of the important Iron Age sequence at Tille Höyük a mound at a crossing of the Euphrates in eastern Turkey The site which was excavated between 1979 and 1990 by the British Institute of Archaeology at Ankara revealed ten major structural levels of the Iron Age spanning the period from the 11th century to the 6th 4th centuries BC as well as earlier and later remains and the wide exposure of architecture provides a sequence of intelligible and impressive building plans After the initial discussion of the background and methodology of their excavation the successive levels are carefully described and fully illustrated The earliest Iron Age occupation simple buildings among the ruins of the Late Bronze Age was followed by a major settlement of the Middle Iron Age when the Neo Hittite kingdom of Kummuh was at its height Most impressive architecturally are a large palatial building centred on a courtyard paved with a pebble mosaic which was probably built after the Assyrian annexation of Kummuh in 708 BC and continued in use through the seventh and the excellently preserved Level X with many distinctively Persian architectural features built in the latter half of the 6th or the early 5th century and probably lasting for a substantial time The structures and stratigraphy are also important as the context for the first rigorously established ceramic sequence in this part of Turkey which will be presented together with the other materials and artefacts in the companion to this volume already complete in draft Lying on the fringes of the Mesopotamian world and with contacts with North Syria North Mesopotamia and the Levant rather than with Anatolia or the Mediterranean Tille casts vivid new light on the cultural and political history of the region in the Iron Age

Centrality Practiced Melody D. Knowles, 2006 At the end of exile the boundaries of sacred geography were open for renegotiation YHWH could once again dwell in Jerusalem in a rebuilt temple and temple centrality could be renewed Yet how were such abstract theological and geographical commitments enacted To what extent was the influence of the city felt and practiced in Yehud or far away Egypt and Babylon To answer such questions this volume examines centrality through the practices of animal sacrifice pilgrimage tithing and the use of incense and figurines Unique in its appraisal of centrality via religious practice and in its integration of the biblical text and archaeological record this study offers a compelling portrait of the variegated centralities of the Jerusalem temple in the Persian period Back cover

The Wide Lens in Archaeology Allan Gilbert,Justin Lev-Tov,Paula Wapnish,2017-06-01 This book honors the memory of Brian Hesse a scholar of Near Eastern archaeology a writer of alliterative and punned publication titles and an accomplished amateur photographer Hesse specialized in zooarchaeology but he influenced a wider range of excavators and ancient historians with his broad interpretive reach He spent much of his career analyzing faunal materials from different countries in the Middle East including Iran Yemen and Israel and his publications covered themes particular to animal bone studies such as domestication ancient market economics as well as broader themes such as determining ethnicity in archaeology The essays in this volume reflect the breadth of his interests Most chapters share an Old World geographic setting focusing either on Europe or the Middle East The topics are diverse with the majority discussing animal bones as was Hesse's specialization but some take a nonfaunal perspective related to the problems with which Hesse grappled The volume is also broad in temporal scope ranging from Neolithic Iran to early Medieval England and it addresses theoretical matters as well as methodological innovations including taphonomy and the history of computers in zooarchaeology Several of the essays are direct revisits to inspirations from or extensions of Hesse's own research All the contributions reflect his intense interest in social questions about antiquity the theme of social archaeology informed much of Brian Hesse's thinking and it is why his work made such an impact on those working outside his own disciplinary research

Buddhist Hybrid Sanskrit

Grammar and Dictionary (2 Vols.) Franklin Edgerton, This is the first attempt at a description of the grammar and lexicon of Buddhist Hybrid Sanskrit Most North Indian Buddhist texts are composed in it It is based primarily on an old Middle Indic vernacular not otherwise identifiable But there seems reason to believe that it contains features that were borrowed from other Middle Indic dialects In other words even its Middle Indic aspects are dialectically somewhat mixed Most strikingly however BHS was also extensively influenced by Sanskrit from the very beginning of the tradition as it has been transmitted to us and increasingly as time went on Many especially later products of this tradition have often though misleadingly been called simply Sanskrit without qualification In principle the author has excluded from the grammar and dictionary all forms which are standard Sanskrit and all words which are used in standard Sanskrit with the same meanings

Ceramics and Change in the Early Bronze Age of the Southern Levant Graham Philip, Douglas Baird, 2000-12-01 This book sets out the primary issues and current debates in the use of ceramics to reconstruct and explain cultural economic and social processes in the Early Bronze age By bringing together research on pottery from various parts of the southern Levant it allows direct comparison of contemporary material from different regions Alongside these empirical studies are discussions of general ceramic issues so that the book highlights the potential of pottery as an investigative tool and indicates fruitful directions for future research within the traditionally conservative field of Levantine archaeology
