

ENDOCRINE SYSTEM

Endocrine System: WORKING TOGETHER

Each organ system works on other systems within the body to do its "job". See below to learn just some of the ways that the endocrine system interacts with other organ systems.

Nervous System

Circulatory System

Endocrine System: FACTS

Endocrine System: PROBLEMS

Most of the time, the endocrine system works perfectly well. However, sometimes problems can arise.

Diabetes

Diabetes is a condition that causes high blood glucose (sugar) levels. It is caused by the body being unable to either produce or use the hormone insulin. So, the glucose in blood sugar gets stuck in the blood. Symptoms include increased thirst, weight loss, frequent urination, blurred vision, slow wound healing, and changes in mood. Diabetes can lead to long-term complications such as heart disease, kidney failure, and vision loss.

Endocrine System: KEY TERMS

| Term | Definition |
|------------------|---|
| Endocrine System | Network of endocrine glands that make, store, and release hormones. |
| Hormones | Chemical messengers that carry information and instructions from one cell to another. |

Endocrine System: HORMONES

Hormones are chemical signals. Hormones are released by a gland into the bloodstream. They travel through the bloodstream to target cells. When they reach the target cells, they bind to receptors on the cell surface or inside the cell. This binding triggers a series of events that cause the target cells to respond. The response can be to produce more hormones, to release more hormones, or to perform a specific function.

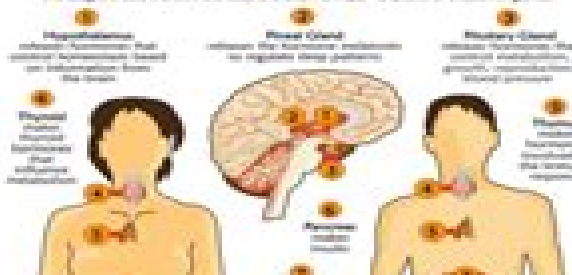

Endocrine System: FIGHT-OR-FLIGHT

The fight-or-flight response is a reaction that occurs in the body when we are really frightened. The brain (specifically the hypothalamus) sends out signals to the adrenal glands. The adrenal glands release hormones that increase heart rate, blood pressure, and blood sugar levels. These hormones also increase the release of glucose from the liver. The fight-or-flight response is triggered by the release of stress hormones. The fight-or-flight response is a survival mechanism that helps us to react quickly to danger. In other words, the fight-or-flight response is a survival mechanism that helps us to react quickly to danger.

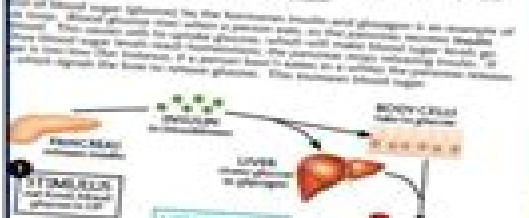

Endocrine System: GLANDS

A gland is a structure that produces and releases substances that perform a specific function in the body. There are two types of glands: exocrine glands and endocrine glands. Exocrine glands release substances into a duct, which then carries the substance to the target cell. Endocrine glands release substances directly into the bloodstream. The substances released by endocrine glands are called hormones. Hormones travel through the bloodstream to target cells, where they bind to receptors and trigger a response. The diagram below shows the locations and functions of major endocrine glands.

Endocrine System: FEEDBACK LOOPS

Endocrine activities are regulated by complex feedback loops. These feedback loops help the body maintain a stable internal environment. When a hormone level rises, it triggers a response that lowers the hormone level. When a hormone level falls, it triggers a response that raises the hormone level. The diagram below shows a feedback loop for blood sugar levels.
