Ground Truths Chad Raphael, Martha Matsuoka, 2024-01-09. A free ebook version of this title is available through Luminos University of California Press's Open Access publishing program. Visit www.luminosoa.org to learn more. This is the first book devoted entirely to summarizing the body of community engaged research on environmental justice, how we can conduct more of it, and how we can do it better. It shows how community engaged research makes unique contributions to environmental justice for Black Indigenous people of color and low income communities by centering local knowledge, building truth from the ground up, producing actionable data that can influence decisions, and transforming researchers' relationships to communities for equity and mutual benefit. The book offers a critical synthesis of relevant research in many fields, outlines the main steps in conducting community engaged research, evaluates the major research methods used, suggests new directions, and addresses overcoming institutional barriers to scholarship in academia. The coauthors employ an original framework that shows how community engaged research and environmental justice align, which links research on the many topics treated in the chapters from public health, urban planning, and conservation to law and policy, community economic development, and food justice and sovereignty. The Oxford Handbook of Research Ethics Ana S. Iltis, Douglas MacKay, 2024. The development of new pharmaceutical products and behavioral interventions aimed at improving people's health, as well as research that assesses the efficacy and cost effectiveness of public policies such as policies designed to improve children's education or reduce poverty, depends on research conducted with human participants. It is imperative that research with human subjects is conducted in accordance with sound ethical principles and regulatory requirements. Featuring 45 original essays by leading research ethicists, The Oxford Handbook of Research Ethics offers a critical overview of the ethics of human subjects research within multiple disciplines and fields, including biomedicine, public health, psychiatry, sociology, political science, and public policy. Learning to Improve Anthony S. Bryk, Louis M. Gomez, Alicia Grunow, Paul G. LeMahieu, 2015-03-01. As a field, education has largely failed to learn from experience. Time after time, promising education reforms fall short of their goals and are abandoned as other promising ideas take their place. In Learning to Improve, the authors argue for a new approach. Rather than implementing fast and learning slow, they believe educators should adopt a more rigorous approach to improvement that allows the field to learn fast to implement well. Using ideas borrowed from improvement science, the authors show how a process of disciplined inquiry can be combined with the use of networks to identify, adapt, and successfully scale up promising interventions in education. Organized around six core principles, the book shows how networked improvement communities can bring together researchers and practitioners to accelerate learning in key areas of education Examples include efforts to address the high rates of failure among students in community college remedial math courses and strategies for improving feedback to novice teachers Learning to Improve offers a new paradigm for research and development in education that promises to be a powerful driver of improvement for the nation s schools and colleges
