Business Statistics, 1971 Waste Trade Journal and Mill Stock Reporter, 1917 International Anti-Corruption Norms Cecily Rose, 2015-08-13 This book traces the creation of international anti corruption norms by states and other actors through four markedly different institutions the Organisation for Economic Co operation and Development the United Nations the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative and the Financial Action Task Force Each of these institutions oversees an international instrument that requires states to combat corruption Yet only the United Nations oversees anti corruption norms that take the sole form of a binding multilateral treaty The OECD has by contrast fostered the development of the binding 1997 OECD Anti Bribery Convention as well as non binding recommendations and guidance associated with treaty itself In addition the revenue transparency and anti money laundering norms developed through the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative and the Financial Action Task Force respectively take the form of non binding instruments that have no relationship with multilateral treaties The creation of international anti corruption norms through non binding instruments and informal institutions has the potential to privilege the interests of powerful states in ways that raise questions about the normative legitimacy of these institutions and the instruments they produce At the same time the anti corruption instruments created under the auspices of these institutions also show that non binding instruments and informal institutions carry significant advantages The non binding instruments in the anti corruption field have demonstrated a capacity to influence domestic legal systems that is comparable to if not greater than that of binding treaties With corruption and money laundering at the forefront of political debate International Anti Corruption Norms provides timely expertise on how states and international institutions grapple with these global problems

Media in Process Sai Felicia Krishna-Hensel, 2016-09-19 The post communist development of media systems has been uneven in the countries of the region Television and newspapers together with the emergence of social media have had great influence on the political debate in various countries Ownership of the media has been a factor in many instances The integration of traditionally isolated Central Eastern Europe into larger worldwide trends has fundamentally changed the way we look at the media in this region This volume proposes to address the transition of the media and communication industries in the contemporary period The contributions discuss among other things the obstacles that still remain for the media to play an effective watchdog role in the new democracies and whether the advent of the Internet and social media has helped or hindered the transformation to a powerful independent media The discussion further examines whether advertising agencies have targeted post communist citizens differently than those in Western European countries and if the media markets in the post communist region are fundamentally different than in Western Europe and North America A second focus of the volume is the media coverage of social issues like domestic violence which is intended to draw attention to these issues and influence policy in a more aware and open society This establishes the trend of post communist media following the example of western media practice The implications of the Central European media transformation for the newly transforming media markets in the post Soviet space suggest a new phase in the development of the medium The impact of global influences on regional expression is an important aspect of the political and social changes that are underway This volume makes an important interdisciplinary contribution in examining the development of the media      United Business Service ,1927
