Saben's Commercial Directory and Handbook of Uganda ,1955      Doctor at Heart Dan Gikonyo,2024-09-24 Doctor at Heart is not just about Dr Gikonyo s life journey but it also delves into pertinent social economic and political issues at the local and global levels The author criss crosses generations and in so doing presents their respective opportunities and challenges while at the same time advancing theories and worldviews that the reader will find very engaging The book also brings out the authors multiple skills each of which he pursues with a passion His authentic search for solutions to the challenges of life aptly depict him as a Doctor at heart Notably Dr Gikonyo emphasises some of the elements of transformation that he envisages for Kenya through a never before published interview of Mwai Kibaki a transcript of which is included in the book      The Rower's Almanac 2006-2007 ,      New Homelands Paul Younger,2009-11-30 When the colonial slave trade and then slavery itself were abolished early in the 19th century the British empire brazenly set up a new system of trade using Indian rather than African laborers The new system of indentured labor was supposed to be different from slavery because the indenture or contract was written for an initial period of five years and involved fixed wages and some specified conditions of work From the workers point of view the one redeeming feature of the system was that most of their workmates spoke their language and came from the same area of India Because this allowed them to develop some sense of community by the end of the initial five years most of the Indian laborers chose to stay in the land to which they had been taken In time that land became the place in which they joined with others to build a new homeland In this fieldwork based study Paul Younger looks at the present day descendents of these workers and their post indenture societies in Mauritius Guyana Trinidad South Africa Fiji and East Africa He finds that they still cling to the fact that it was an arbitrary

British decision that took them there and made the society pluralistic This plurality seems to require them to search their memory for a distinctive religious tradition that they can pass on to their children They know that there was a loss of culture involved in their move to these locations and consider it important to recover from that loss But they are also intensely proud of their new identity and insist that they have established a new religious tradition in their new homeland For generations says Younger these people had struggled in their situation and now they had come up with a sense of community and purpose and were prepared to make the historical claim that they had developed an appropriate religious tradition for their specific community
