

Think about changes...

On the morning the letter came, Dad had shouted out excitedly, "We're setting out on a new adventure," but I wasn't convinced I wanted to leave behind my life in the city. Two months later, removal day had come and gone, and we had arrived at our new house in the country. The hallway looked like a pigsty. It was cluttered up with piles of boxes; full of dusty old books we never read, ancient ornaments we didn't look at and other family heirlooms even Granny didn't want. There was a musty sort of smell that you associate with old things that are stored in the loft. It was a horrible muddle and looked as if we were collecting for a jumble sale. This made me feel even more miserable; the adventure hadn't got off to a good start.

Remaking Wormsloe Plantation Drew A. Swanson,2012-04-01 Why do we preserve certain landscapes while developing others without restraint Drew A Swanson s in depth look at Wormsloe plantation located on the salt marshes outside of Savannah Georgia explores that question while revealing the broad historical forces that have shaped the lowcountry South Wormsloe is one of the most historic and ecologically significant stretches of the Georgia coast It has remained in the hands of one family from 1736 when Georgia s Trustees granted it to Noble Jones through the 1970s when much of Wormsloe was ceded to Georgia for the creation of a state historic site It has served as a guard post against aggression from Spanish Florida a node in an emerging cotton economy connected to far flung places like Lancashire and India a retreat for pleasure and leisure and a carefully maintained historic site and green space Like many lowcountry places Wormsloe is inextricably tied to regional national and global environments and is the product of transatlantic exchanges Swanson argues that while visitors to Wormsloe value what they perceive to be an authentic undisturbed place this landscape is actually the product of aggressive management over generations He also finds that Wormsloe is an ideal place to get at hidden stories such as African American environmental and agricultural knowledge conceptions of health and disease the relationship between manual labor and views of nature and the ties between historic preservation and natural resource conservation Remaking Wormsloe Plantation connects this distinct Georgia place to the broader world adding depth and nuance to the understanding of our own conceptions of nature and history Luxury and Rubble Erik

Harms,2016-10-21 Luxury and Rubble is the tale of two cities within a city It is the story of two master planned mixed use residential and commercial developments that are changing the face of Ho Chi Minh City The two developments that Erik Harms examines are examples of urban development projects known in Vietnam as New Urban Zones These programs which were born in the early 1990s are steadily reorganizing the urban landscape in cities across the country For many Vietnamese they are a symbol of the country s emergence into global modernity and post socialist economic reforms However they are also sites of great contestation sparking land disputes and controversies over how to compensate evicted residents This is a vivid portrayal of urban reorganization along deeply human terms which delves into the complex and sometimes contradictory experiences of individuals grappling with the forces of privatization in a socialist country Provided by publisher
