Institutionalized Cabinet Christopher J. C. Dunn,Institute of Public Administration of Canada,1995 In this systematic investigation of how central executives in western Canadian provinces actually function Christopher Dunn describes the evolution of cabinet decision making from a relatively uncoordinated structure into the institutionalized or structured cabinet of the postwar era Dunn investigates the factors that led to the initiation and persistence of institutionalized cabinets in the governments of T C Douglas in Saskatchewan Duff Roblin and Walter Weir in Manitoba and W R Bennett in British Columbia He describes the transition from unaided central executive structures to those that are more structured collegial and prone to emphasize planning and coordination He also examines how the premier's role has expanded from simply choosing cabinets to reorganizing their structure and decision making processes The institutionalization of provincial cabinets has had major effects on both political actors and functions in the three provinces studied Dunn shows that cabinet structure has changed and been changed by power relations within the cabinet
