The Forgotten Men Margaret E. Leigey,2015-05-08 Today there are approximately fifty thousand prisoners in American prisons serving life without parole having been found guilty of crimes ranging from murder and rape to burglary carjacking and drug offences In The Forgotten Men criminologist Margaret E Leigey provides an insightful account of a group of aging inmates imprisoned for at least twenty years with virtually no chance of release These men make up one of the most marginalized segments of the contemporary U S prison population Considered too dangerous for rehabilitation ignored by prison administrators and overlooked by courts disinclined to review such sentences these prisoners grow increasingly cut off from family and the outside world Drawing on in depth interviews with twenty five such prisoners Leigey gives voice to these extremely marginalized inmates and offers a look at how they struggle to cope She reveals for instance that the men believe that permanent incarceration is as inhumane as capital punishment calling life without parole the hard death penalty Indeed after serving two decades in prison some wished that they had received the death penalty instead Leigey also recounts the ways in which the prisoners attempt to construct meaningful lives inside the bleak environment where they will almost certainly live out their lives Every state in the union except Alaska has the life without parole sentencing option despite its controversial nature and its staggering cost to the taxpayer The Forgotten Men provides a much needed analysis of the policies behind life without parole sentencing arguing that such sentences are overused and lead to serious financial and ethical dilemmas

Justice for William Helen P. Simpson, 2007-01-01 Wendy Crompton's son William and his girlfriend Fiona were killed in a horrendous attack by a young man when William was just 18 years old Justice for William shares Wendy's experience of what followed the murders when as a secondary victim she was treated in ways that ranged from insensitivity to downright prejudice and lack of respect She was kept out of the loop that is the criminal justice system causing her anxiety stress and mistrust of everyone from the police paramedics and the psychiatrists to the coroner's officer who prevented her from kissing William goodbye and ejected her from the mortuary Furthermore the doctors could not satisfactorily explain why they had released her son's killer the detective said that her son was better off dead than alive and the funeral director told her You can't afford flowers This hard hitting remarkable and challenging book that should be read by anyone and everyone who comes into contact with victims of crime also tells of the good that exists in many people and the decency of those who saw Wendy through her experiences With a Foreword by Terry Waite CBE
