

ENDOCRINE SYSTEM

Hormones Chemical substances that act as messengers and control metabolic functions of other cells in the body.

- They are 7-10% of the body's mass.
- Are classified as steroid or protein hormones.
- Steroid hormones, derived from cholesterol, are lipid-soluble and can pass through the cell membrane to bind with intracellular receptors.
- Protein hormones, derived from amino acids, are water-soluble and bind to receptors on the cell surface.
- Protein hormones are water-soluble.
- Steroid hormones are lipid-soluble.

Water vs. Lipid Soluble Hormones

Water-soluble hormones bind to a receptor on the plasma membrane, activating a second messenger system. They are water-soluble and can pass through the cell membrane.

Lipid-soluble hormones pass through the cell membrane and bind to intracellular receptors. They are lipid-soluble and can pass through the cell membrane.

Endocrinology the scientific study of hormones and the endocrine glands.

- 1. Growth and development
- 2. Metabolic rate, energy and substrate balance
- 3. Regulation of the immune system and energy balance
- 4. Reproduction

How it works: The endocrine system works with the nervous system to control and regulate various functions in the body, such as metabolism, growth, and reproduction.

- Endocrine glands release hormones into the bloodstream to regulate various functions in the body.
- Each hormone has a specific function in the body and acts on target cells to regulate their function.
- Each hormone has a specific target cell or organ.
- A target cell has receptors on its cell membrane that bind to the hormone.
- When the hormone binds to the receptor, it triggers a signal transduction pathway that leads to a specific response.
- After the hormone binds to the cell receptor, a chemical chain of events occurs, leading to a hormonal response.

ENDOCRINE VS. EXOCRINE GLANDS

Endocrine Glands	Exocrine Glands
Release hormones into the bloodstream.	Release secretions into ducts that lead to the outside of the body.
Examples: Hypothalamus, Pituitary, Thyroid, Parathyroid, Adrenal, Pancreas, Gonads.	Examples: Salivary glands, Sweat glands, Mammary glands, Liver, Pancreas.
