Commemorative Spaces of the First World War James Wallis, David C. Harvey, 2017-07-20 This is the first book to bring together an interdisciplinary theoretically engaged and global perspective on the First World War through the lens of historical and cultural geography. Reflecting the centennial interest in the conflict, the collection explores the relationships between warfare and space and pays particular attention to how commemoration is connected to spatial elements of national identity and processes of heritage and belonging. Venturing beyond military history and memory studies, contributors explore conceptual contributions of geography to analyse the First World War as well as reflecting upon the imperative for an academic discussion on the War's centenary. This book explores the War's impact in more unexpected theatres, blurring the boundary between home and fighting fronts, investigating the experiences of the war amongst civilians and often overlooked combatants. It also critically examines the politics of hindsight in the post-war period and offers an historical geographical account of how the First World War has been memorialised within official spaces, in addition to those overlooked and often undervalued alternative spaces of commemoration. This innovative and timely text will be key reading for students and scholars of the First World War and more broadly in historical and cultural geography, social and cultural history, European history, Heritage Studies, military history and memory studies.

Sugarcane Bioenergy for Sustainable Development Luis A. B. Cortez, Manoel Regis L. V. Leal, Luiz A. Horta Nogueira, 2018-10-25 In recent years there has been a rapid expansion of the growing of crops for use in bioenergy production rather than for food. This has been particularly the case for sugarcane in Latin America and Africa. This book examines the further potential in the context of the food versus fuel debate and as a strategy for sustainable development. Detailed case studies of two countries, Colombia and Mozambique, are presented. These address the key issues such as the balance between food security and energy security, rural and land development policies and feasibility and production models for expanding bioenergy. The authors then assess these issues in the context of broader sustainable development strategies including implications for economics, employment, generation and the environment. The book will be of great interest to researchers and professionals in energy and agricultural development.

Featuring best practices and theoretical frameworks as well as potential issues in the implementation of smart and green technology in urban settings, this publication is a vital reference source for graduate students, researchers, academics, engineers, architects, facility managers, and government officials.

Cities as Political Objects Alistair Cole, Renaud Payre, 2016-12-30. Focusing on the city's role as the nexus for new forms of relationships between politics, economics, and society, this fascinating book views the city as a political phenomena. Its chapters unravel the city's plural histories, contested political, legal, and administrative boundaries, and its policy-making capacity in the context of multi-level and market pressures.

Bicycle Justice and Urban Transformation Aaron Golub, Melody L. Hoffmann, Adonia E. Lugo, Gerardo F. Sandoval, 2016-07-15. As bicycle commuting grows in the United States, the profile of the white middle-class cyclist has emerged. This stereotype evolves just as investments in cycling play an increasingly important role in neighborhood transformations. However, despite stereotypes, the cycling public is actually quite diverse, with the greatest share falling into the lowest income categories. Bicycle Justice and Urban Transformation demonstrates that for those with privilege, bicycling can be liberatory, a lifestyle choice; whereas for those surviving at the margins, cycling is not a choice but an often oppressive necessity. Ignoring these invisible cyclists skews bicycle improvements towards those with choices. This book argues that it is vital to contextualize bicycling within a broader social justice framework if investments are to serve all street users equitably. Bicycle justice is an inclusionary social movement based on furthering material equity and the recognition that qualitative differences matter. This book illustrates equitable bicycle advocacy policy and planning. In synthesizing the projects of critical cultural studies, transportation justice, and planning, the book reveals the relevance of social justice to public and community-driven investments in cycling. This book will
