Geography Paper 1 Tshwane West 2014:

Measures and Determinants of Urban Food Security: Evidence from Accra, Ghana Tuholske, Cascade, Andam, Kwaw S., Blekking, Jordan, Evans, Tom, Caylor, Kelly, 2018-11-22 The urban population in Africa south of the Sahara SSA is expected to expand rapidly from 376 million people in 2015 to more than 1.25 billion people by 2050. Measuring and ensuring food security among urban households will become an increasingly pertinent task for development researchers and practitioners. In this paper, we characterize food security among a sample of low and middle income residents of Accra, Ghana using 2017 survey data. We find that households tend to purchase food from traditional markets, local stalls, and kiosks and street hawkers and rarely from modern supermarkets. We characterize food security using three established metrics: the Household Food Insecurity Access Scale (HFIAS), the Household Food Insecurity Access Prevalence (HFIAP), and the Food Consumption Score (FCS). We then estimate the determinants of food security using general linear models. The food security metrics are not strongly correlated. For example, according to HFIAP, as many as 70 percent of households sampled are food insecure, but only 2 percent fall below acceptable thresholds measured by FCS. Model results show that household education, assets, and dwelling characteristics are significantly associated with food security according to HFIAS and HFIAP but not with FCS. The poor correlation and weak model agreement between the dietary recall metric FCS and the experience-based metrics HFIAS and HFIAP call for closer attention to measurement of urban food security. Given Africa's urban future, our findings highlight the need for an urban-oriented comprehensive approach to the food security of urban households. The Oxford

Handbook of Environmental Criminology Gerben J.N. Bruinsma, Shane D. Johnson, 2018-02-08 The study of how the environment, local geography, and physical locations influence crime has a long history that stretches across many research traditions. These include the neighborhood effects approach developed in the 1920s, the criminology of place, and a newer approach that attends to the perception of crime in communities. Aided by new technologies and improved data reporting in recent decades, research in environmental criminology has developed rapidly within each of these approaches. Yet research in the subfield remains fragmented, and competing theories are rarely examined together. The Oxford Handbook of Environmental Criminology takes a unique approach and synthesizes the contributions of existing methods to better integrate the subfield as a whole. Gerben J.N. Bruinsma and Shane D. Johnson have assembled a cast of top scholars to provide an in-depth source for understanding how and why physical setting can influence the emergence of crime, affect the environment, and impact individual or group behavior. The contributors address how changes in the environment, global connectivity, and technology provide more criminal opportunities and new ways of committing old crimes. They also explore how crimes committed in countries with distinct cultural practices like China and West Africa might lead to different spatial patterns of crime. This is a state-of-the-art compendium on environmental criminology that reflects the diverse research and theory developed across the western world. The Routledge Companion to Interdisciplinary Studies in Sociology, Volume II:
