Teaching Poetry in the Primary Classroom Gervase Phinn, 2009-01-05. When asked by the school inspector what he thought of poetry, an eleven-year-old replied that it's all la dida and daffodils, isn't it? In his primary school, the boy had come across very little poetry apart from nursery rhymes, snatches of rhyming verse and a few comic pieces and nonsense poems. Poetry to him was something arcane, not really related to his own life. He had studied no powerful, challenging, contemplative, arresting, quirky poems and had written very few poems himself. His teacher admitted that he was no English specialist, had received few ideas at college on the teaching of poetry and didn't really know where to start. As children progress through the primary school, they need to be exposed to a rich diet of poetry and encouraged to read, perform, and write it themselves. Providing a varied and stimulating environment is essential if it is to flourish. In addition, children need specific guidance and ideas to start them off writing their own poems. This book, written by a former teacher and school inspector and popular and widely published children's poet, offers an accessible, practical, and structured programme for the teaching of this sometimes neglected aspect of the English curriculum.

The Oxford Companion to American Food and Drink Andrew F. Smith, 2007-05-01. Offering a panoramic view of the history and culture of food and drink in America, with fascinating entries on everything from the smell of asparagus to the history of White Castle and the origin of Bloody Marys to jambalaya, the Oxford Companion to American Food and Drink provides a concise, authoritative, and exuberant look at this modern American obsession. Ideal for the food scholar and food enthusiast alike, it is equally appetizing for anyone fascinated by Americana, capturing our culture and history through what we love most: food. Building on the highly praised and deliciously browseable two-volume compendium, the Oxford Encyclopedia of Food and Drink in America, this new work serves up everything you could ever want to know about American consumables and their impact on popular culture and the culinary world. Within its pages, for example, we learn that Lifesavers candy owes its success to the canny marketing idea of placing the original flavor mint next to cash registers at bars. Patrons who bought them to mask the smell of alcohol on their breath before heading home soon found they were just as tasty sober, and the company began producing other flavors. Edited by Andrew Smith, a writer and lecturer on culinary history, the Companion serves up more than just trivia, however, including hundreds of entries on fast food, celebrity chefs, fish sandwiches, regional and ethnic cuisine, food science, and historical food traditions. It also dispels a few commonly held myths: Veganism isn't simply the practice of a few hippies but is in fact wide spread among elite athletic circles Many of the top competitors in the Ironman and Ultramarathon events go even further avoiding all animal products by following a strictly vegan diet Anyone hungry to know what our nation has been cooking and eating for the last three centuries should own the Oxford Companion to American Food and Drink     How Was School Today? Paul Higgins,2004 How Was School Today explores the richly complex school experiences of Katie a fifth grader in a very small school that educates children of varying ages and academic capabilities together Katie s experiences provide an opportunity to wonder about the school experiences of any child How Was School Today goes inside a world about which parents typically know very little and about which teachers may wish to learn more     Beneath Montana Skies Beulah Brasen,2017-01-28 Beulah Brasen was born to Oliver and Edna Ralstin near North Vernon Indiana in 1907 Her memoir begins in 1916 as she boards a train bound for the American West Her family settled at the end of the line near Scobey Montana where she lived until her death in 2000 This is her story from the wild prairie Beneath Montana Skies     Children's Catalog H.W.
