1. Ensure your system contains a room thermostat and a hot water thermostat and that both are set to appropriate temperature levels: typically 21°C for the room temperature and between 50 - 55°C for the hot water temperature.
2. Programme your heating and hot water to be off when you are not in the house. If you are concerned about possible frost damage to any exposed pipework, it is advisable to fit a frost protection system - your weather call advice you about this.
3. Think about how you use your domestic hot water - if you have a storage system, it is not necessary to have this switched on all the time, even when you are in the house.
4. Calculate the heat up times required for your central heating. There have requests recently when the heating is switched on. Adjust the start time so that you are not cold when you get up in the morning. A shorter heat up time is required for other heating periods.
5. In the evening, when the house is up to temperature, it is often possible to switch off the heating system and before you go to bed, without any noticeable reduction in comfort.
