

Hooke's Law

The diagram shows three vertical springs hanging from a horizontal support. The leftmost spring is the shortest and has a single yellow mass hanging from it. The middle spring is of medium height and has two yellow masses hanging from it. The rightmost spring is the tallest and has three yellow masses hanging from it. A horizontal line with a right-pointing arrow is drawn from the support to the first spring, labeled with the letter 'x', representing the displacement or extension of the spring.

Background

Students have learned about the forces of gravity and buoyancy. They have also learned about the forces of tension and normal force. In this activity, students will use a spring scale to measure the forces of gravity and buoyancy on a submerged object.

Materials

- Spring scale
- String
- Weight (e.g., metal cylinder)
- Water
- Beaker

Procedure

- Attach the string to the top of the spring scale.
- Attach the weight to the bottom of the string.
- Hold the spring scale so that the weight is hanging vertically.
- Read the scale and record the weight of the object in air.
- Fill the beaker with water.
- Submerge the weight in the water.
- Read the scale and record the weight of the object in water.
- Compare the two readings. What do you notice?

Conclusion

The weight of the object in water is less than the weight of the object in air. This is because the water exerts an upward force on the object, called the buoyant force. The buoyant force is equal to the weight of the water displaced by the object.
