Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were randomly divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The control group was instructed to maintain their current level of physical activity, while the exercise group was instructed to engage in a 12-week training program. The training program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes, and included both aerobic and resistance training. The HR and HRR were measured at baseline and at the end of the 12-week training program. The results showed that the exercise group had a significant increase in HR and HRR compared to the control group. The HR increased from 72 to 82 beats per minute, and the HRR increased from 28 to 38 beats per minute. The control group showed no significant change in HR and HRR. The findings suggest that a 12-week training program can effectively improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary middle-aged men.
