

TIPS FOR WRITING A PHILOSOPHY PAPER

Most of you have not written a philosophy paper before. Writing a philosophy paper is fundamentally unlike writing other sorts of papers.

What is a philosophy paper?

The best way to approach a philosophy paper is to look at it as a debate. First you are going to present someone else's view or views, and then you are going to critically evaluate it. In general there will be two parts to your paper: exposition and evaluation. The first part, exposition, involves you taking the view of the author or authors, recognizing the key elements, and putting those elements into your own words. The second part, evaluation, is harder. In the evaluation, you need to critique the views of the author.

Writing a philosophy paper

It is often difficult for students to write their first philosophy papers because they have been trained to write in ways that are counterproductive to writing good papers in philosophy. The most critical element in philosophy papers is to be clear and to the point. Every word should be necessary and help to further your goals. Particular guidelines:

1. Do not write introductions or conclusions. These never contribute any content to the overall paper and, given that you are writing such short papers, are unnecessary. Do not start your papers with otiose claims such as "Since the beginning of time man is contemplated the existence of God..." or "You could be Neo in the Matrix...". Rather, jump straight into your topic, your first sentence should be, for example, "In the Meditations Descartes argues...". At the end, rest with your final thoughts, do not summarize.
2. Do not write flowery, convoluted sentences such as "Descartes finds himself mired in a quandary in virtue of his marriage to the view that..." but rather "Descartes' position is problematic because..." In all cases, simplify! Many of you have been taught in English classes to use active verbs (e.g., explore, study) rather than passive verbs (e.g., is, was, were). In philosophy, you may use passive voice; it helps to simplify and clarify your writing.
3. You may and should write in first person. Particularly as you evaluate the articles, it's helpful to write that, for example, "I think that Descartes needs to say more about...". This shows that you are expressing your own thoughts.
4. Outlining: It is important for a good paper in philosophy to be well ordered. To that end, having an outline of your paper BEFORE you begin writing is very important. In most cases, the outline of your paper will be given in a broad form through the prompt. Generally the questions will be asked in a way that will track the dialectic of the course.
5. Drafts: You should have more than a final draft of your paper. That is, one key to a good paper is to not write it last minute. Believe it or not, it is painfully obvious to most professors when their students write their papers the night before. That is doubly true in philosophy. The trick to a good philosophy paper is to communicate very unambiguously, thoroughly and accurately. Most people are not unambiguous, thorough and accurate in their first take.
6. Citations: In most of the papers I will assign, you will not need to cite any sources. I will be asking you to summarize ideas we've discussed in class and then to give your own thoughts on the issue. Neither of those will necessarily involve research or the need to cite other works.
