Shakespeare in Malawi Amy Bonsall, Secondary School Curriculum Review Symposium, 1995      Trends in Malawian Literature Francis P. B. Moto, 2001 Trends in Malawian Literature's departure point is a brief examination of how Malawi's post-independence politics affected Malawi's literary landscape and an assessment of the early missionaries' contribution to early Malawian literature in the local languages. That done, it discusses messages in the early literature. The conclusion drawn is that the early literature in Malawi, like most African countries, was a potent mouthpiece for Christian doctrine and western values. Against this background, Trends in Malawian Literature assesses the concerns of later writers who, although beginning to move from the good versus evil dichotomy, still emphasize that socially and culturally one is either an sinner initially and turns to be good later or vice versa. Senior Comprehensive History of Central Africa Harry James Kamwaza, 2007      The Education System in Malawi World Bank, 2010-02-25 The Education System in Malawi: an Education Country Status Report (CSR) is a detailed analysis of the current status of the education sector in Malawi, the results of which have been validated by the government of Malawi. Its main purpose is to enable decision makers to orient national policy on the basis of a factual diagnosis of the overall education sector and to provide relevant analytical information for the dialogue between the government and development partners. The analysis incorporates data and information from multiple sources such as school administrative surveys by the Ministry of Education, household surveys, and a tracer survey created especially for this study. This CSR developed by a multi-ministerial national team supported by UNESCO, the World Bank, and GTZ specialists updates the previous one drawn up in 2003 and consists of eight chapters, including a chapter on higher education. The analysis provides key monitoring and evaluation inputs for the overall education sector, particularly under the framework of the implementation of the National Education Sector Plan.

The authors are indigenous and have been participants in the language planning context.

The Ethical Case against Animal Experiments Andrew Linzey, Clair Linzey, 2017-12-21 At present, human beings worldwide are using an estimated 115.3 million animals in experiments, a normalization of the unthinkable on an immense scale. In terms of harm, pain, suffering, and death, animal experiments constitute one of the major moral issues of our time. Given today's deeper understanding of animal sentience, the contributors to this volume argue that we must afford animals a special moral consideration that precludes their use in experiments. The Ethical Case against Animal Experiments begins with the Oxford

Centre for Animal Ethics's groundbreaking and comprehensive ethical critique of the practice of animal experiments A second section offers original writings that engage with and elaborate on aspects of the Oxford Centre report The essayists explore historical philosophical and personal perspectives that range from animal experiments in classical times to the place of necessity in animal research to one researcher's painful journey from researcher to opponent A devastating look at a contemporary moral crisis The Ethical Case against Animal Experiments melds logic and compassion to mount a powerful challenge to human cruelty

Kaplan, 2004 A longer range purpose is to collect comparable information on as many polities as possible in order to facilitate the development of a richer theory to guide language policy and planning in other polities that undertake the development of a national policy on languages This volume is part of an areal series which is committed to providing descriptions of language planning and policy in countries around the world
