

Assignment 2

Calculating Individual and Cumulative Markups

When calculating total cumulative percentage markup, you can apply your formula sequentially, but each time you apply it, you're calculating a markup percentage of the last calculated cost, not the percentage-markup-adjusted full cost. This leads to the cumulative markup being a cumulative markup of a markup, which distorts the results. To avoid this, you need to apply your formula to the original percentage-markup-adjusted full cost.

WORKING MARKUP PERCENTAGE

Creating and Using Your Own Spreadsheet

1. Input the initial full-cost-adjusted amount of $100.
2. An additional factor, representing inflation, has been introduced and will be:
 - a. Input the given Working Markup Percentage. Adjust the product the number introduced.
 - b. As with full, apply that.
 - c. As with full, apply that twice.
 - d. As with full, apply that.
3. Input your own formula to calculate the cumulative markup percentage. Be sure the working percentage is used to get the cost type the in your formula. Input 100,000,000, which represents the full cost and working markup. When you add in the cumulative markup, the result is that the full cost is now given $11.111. The cumulative markup is the final difference.

Working Markup Percentage
Cost	100,000
Markup %	11.111%
Total	111,111

4. Use the spreadsheet to calculate the markup percentage for the cost and working markup percentage. The result is that the cumulative markup is 11.111%, which is the result of the markup percentage. The result is that the cumulative markup is 11.111%.
5. When you have completed the assignment, save the file under the name "Assignment 2" and close the file.
