Shakespeare's Sonnet 130	Shakespeare's Sonnet 130	Shakespeare's Sonnet 130
My mistress' eyes are nothing like the sun,          Coral is far more red than her lips' red,          If snow be white, why then her breasts are dun,          If hairs be wires, black wires grow on her head,          I have seen roses damasked, red and white,          But no such sees on her cheeks;          There is that bloom in her cheeks          I have not seen elsewhere,          That music hath a far more pleasing sound,          I grant I never saw a goddess go,          My mistress, when she walks, treads on the ground,          And yet, by heaven, I think my love as rare          As any that belies with false compare.		miscreant = lowly or inferior friend          dun = brownish-grey          damasked = streaked red &amp; white roses          roses = girls/women          treads = walks/steps          belies = disappoint, contradict, fail to fulfill          false compare = exaggeration
