Architect Knows Best Dr Simon Richards, 2012-08-01 The idea that buildings could be used to reform human behaviour and improve society was fundamental to the modernist architecture and planning of people like Walter Gropius Le Corbusier and Jos Luis Sert in the first half of the 20th century Their proposals for functional zoning multi level transport high rise living and machine inspired aesthetics came under attack from the 1950s onwards and many alternative approaches to architecture and planning emerged It was thought that the environmental determinist strand of the discourse was killed off at this time as well This book argues that it was not but on the contrary that it has deepened and diversified Many of the most prominent architect planners continue to design with a view to improving the behaviour of individual people and of society at large By looking at and interviewing major figures and movements of recent years in Britain Europe and America including Louis Krier Peter Eisenman Andrés Duany Jane Jacobs Robert Venturi and Denise Scott Brown it demonstrates the myriad ways that architect planners seek to shape human behaviour through buildings In doing so the book raises awareness of this strand within the discourse and examines its different purposes and manifestations It questions whether it is an ineradicable and beneficial part of architecture and planning or a regrettable throwback to a more authoritarian phase discusses why it is seldom acknowledged directly and whether it could be handled more responsibly and with greater understanding Richards does not provide any simple solutions but in conclusion is critical of architect planners who abuse the rhetoric of social reform simply to leverage their attempts to secure building commissions while being more sympathetic towards those who appear to have a sincere desire to improve society through their buildings

Natural Gas Hydrate - Arctic Ocean Deepwater Resource Potential Michael D. Max, Arthur H. Johnson, William P. Dillon, 2013-10-11 The book is an up to date basic reference for natural gas hydrate NGH in the Arctic Ocean Geographical geological environmental energy new technology and regulatory matters are discussed The book should be of interest to general readers and scientists and students as well as industry and government agencies concerned with energy and ocean management NGH is a solid crystalline material that compresses gas by about a factor of about 164 during crystallization from natural gas mainly methane rich pore waters over time NGH displaces water and may form large concentrations in sediment pore space Its formation introduces changes in the geotechnical character of host sediment that allows it to be distinguished by seismic and electric exploration methods The chemical reaction that forms NGH from gas and water molecules is highly reversible which allows controlled conversion of the NGH to its constituent gas and water This can be achieved rapidly by one of a number of processes including heating depressurization inhibitor injection dissolution and molecular replacement The produced gas has the potential to make NGH a valuable unconventional natural gas resource and perhaps the largest on earth Estimates for NGH distribution concentration economic targets and volumes in the Arctic Ocean have been carried out by restricting the economic target to deepwater turbidite sands which are also sediment hosts for more deeply buried conventional hydrocarbon deposits Resource base estimates are based on NGH petroleum system analysis approach using industry standard parameters along with analogs from three relatively well known examples Nankai Japan Gulf of Mexico United States and Arctic permafrost hydrate Drilling data has substantiated new geotechnical level seismic analysis techniques for estimating not just the presence of NGH but prospect volumes In addition to a volumetric estimate for NGH having economic potential a sedimentary depositional model is proposed to aid exploration in the five different regions around the deep central Arctic Ocean basin Related topics are also discussed Transport and logistics for NGH may also be applicable for stranded conventional gas and oil deposits Arising from a discussion of new technology and methodologies that could be applied to developing NGH suggestions are made for the lowering of exploration and capital expenses that could make NGH competitive on a produced cost basis The basis for the extraordinarily low environmental risk for exploration and production of NGH is discussed especially with respect to the environmentally fragile Arctic region It is suggested that because of the low environmental risk special regulations could be written that would provide a framework for very low cost and safe development The Business Printer Porte Publishing Company, Salt Lake City,1944
