Abstract

During the course of the experiment, people identified and remembered words that they saw, as well as words that were related to the words they saw. For example, they saw the word "apple" and then the word "fruit". They also saw the word "apple" and then the word "red". The results showed that people were better at remembering words that they saw than words that they heard. This suggests that visual information is processed more efficiently than auditory information.

The Art of Teaching Spanish Rafael Salaberry, Barbara A. Lafford, 2006-12-08 The Art of Teaching Spanish explores in depth the findings of research in second language acquisition SLA and other language related fields and translates those findings into practical pedagogical tools for current and future Spanish language instructors This volume addresses how theoretical frameworks affect the application of research findings to the teaching of Spanish how logistical factors affect the way research findings can be applied to teach Spanish and how findings from Spanish SLA research would be applicable to Spanish second language teaching and represented in Spanish curricula through objectives and goals as evidenced in pedagogical materials such as textbooks and computer assisted language learning software Top SLA researchers and applied linguists lend their expertise on matters such as foreign language across curriculum programs testing online learning the incorporation of linguistic variation into the classroom heritage language learners the teaching of translation the effects of study abroad and classroom contexts on learning and other pedagogical issues Other common themes of The Art of Teaching Spanish include the rejection of the concept of a monolithic language competence the importance of language as social practice and cultural competence the psycholinguistic component of SLA and the need for more cross fertilization from related fields
