Guidelines For Pap Smears 2013:

CURRENT Practice Guidelines in Primary Care 2013 Joseph S. Esherick, Daniel S. Clark, Evan D. Slater, 2012-12-18
Current Practice Guidelines in Primary Care 2013 draws information from many established CPG sources and presents summaries of the most relevant guidelines in an easy to use pocket sized package for use by any primary care clinician. It offers quick access to the latest guidelines for the most appropriate preventive services, screening methods, and treatment approaches for commonly encountered conditions in the outpatient setting.

WHO guideline for screening and treatment of cervical pre-cancer lesions for cervical cancer prevention World Health Organization, 2024-06-05
In this publication, recommendations for the Use of dual stain cytology to triage women after a positive test for human papillomavirus (HPV) are presented. Dual stain cytology can be used as a triage test in cervical screen triage and treatment algorithms for cancer prevention. It is performed on liquid based cytology (LBC) slides, not on conventional Pap smears, to detect the presence of two proteins, p16 and Ki 67. Recommendation for the general population of women: In a screen triage and treatment approach, use HPV Nucleic Acid Tests (NATs) as the primary screening test among the general population of women. WHO suggests using partial genotyping, colposcopy, VIA, cytology, or dual stain cytology to triage women after a positive HPV NAT result. When providing dual stain cytology to triage women after a positive HPV NAT, WHO suggests using samples collected by the health worker and retesting with HPV NATs 24 months after a negative dual stain cytology result. These are conditional recommendations based on low certainty evidence for dual stain cytology as a triage test. No recommendation was made for using dual stain cytology to triage women living with HIV after a positive HPV DNA test because evidence on the outcomes of using dual stain cytology applicable to this population was minimal.
