

Legal requirements for franchisors

State recognition

File or register your franchise, according to the state in which you plan to sell your franchise.

FDD

Draft and provide a franchise disclosure document that contains the required 23 items with detailed information about the franchisor and the franchise system, including the franchisor's background, business experience, litigation history, initial and ongoing fees, territory restrictions, and other important details.

Tax compliance

Ensure to comply with the federal, state, and local tax regulations.

Financials

Show evidence of the financial performance of the business and allow franchisees to evaluate the risk associated with the investment.

Franchise Agreement

Provide a franchise agreement that outlines the terms and conditions under which the franchisee can operate the business, including details about the franchise fee, royalties, training, marketing support, and other obligations and rights of both parties.

Operations manual

Write an operations manual that contains the operational guidelines, procedures, and standards for running a franchise business and serves as a guide to run the business effectively and maintain consistency across multiple franchise locations.

Trademark registration

Protect your brand name and other identifying trademarks. Have exclusive rights over them and authorize franchisees to use them without compromising your intellectual property.
