Collective Bargaining for Police and Other Essential Services Giuseppe Carabetta, 2024-10-14 This book examines how collective bargaining disputes are resolved among police and essential service employees In Australia as in other common law countries police and other highly essential employees such as fire fighters and ambulance officers have long had access to a form of binding arbitration to settle collective bargaining disputes The traditional arbitration based system in Australia has however been replaced in recent decades with a marked based collective bargaining system The current Fair Work system restricts access to arbitration favouring collective bargaining based on the parties prerogative to make their own agreements and supported by a limited right to industrial action including strikes during bargaining Yet police officers particularly are subject to considerable restraints on any entitlement to participate in industrial action The problem is that with limited access to arbitration and an especially limited right to industrial action intractable disputes may continue indefinitely without any impasse breaking process to prevent the flow on harms of long running police disputes This raises the essential question underpinning this study what form of dispute resolution system is appropriate to protect both the legitimate industrial interests of police officers and the community s interest in the uninterrupted provision of essential policing services The author in his extensive field work research and his study of international case studies has developed a useful model for mandatory interest arbitration among police and other essential services personnel The lessons and recommendations in the book offer insights for essential services labour law in Australia and overseas

Serving the Stigmatized Wesley T. Church II, David W. Springer, 2018-06-26 America's incarceration rate was roughly constant from 1925 to 1973 with an average of 110 people behind bars for every 100 000 residents By 2013 however the rate of incarceration in state and federal prisons had increased sevenfold to 716 Compared with 102 for Canada 132 for England and Wales 85 for France and a paltry 48 in Japan the United States is the world's most aggressive jailer When one factors in those on parole or probation the American correctional system is in control of more than 7.3 million Americans or one in every 31 U.S. adults This means that 6.7 million adult men and women about 3.1 percent of the total U.S. adult population are now very non-voluntary members of America's correctional community Some key questions that need to be addressed are What are we doing with those 7.3 million Americans How are they being treated while they are incarcerated How can we best prepare them to return to their communities More than 650 000 offenders are released back into our communities every year however 70% are rearrested within three years of their release Serving the Stigmatized is the first book of its kind that explores best practices when dealing with a specific prison population while under some form of institutional control If the established goal of a correctional facility is to rehabilitate then it is imperative that the rehabilitation is effective and does not simply serve as a political buzz word The timing of releasing this book coincides with a real movement in the United States supported by both conservative and liberal advocates and foundations to decrease the size of the prison population by returning more offenders to their communities The text examines 14 specific populations and how to effectively treat them in order to better serve them and our communities
