Mi Sook Park

Westman,2012-06-18 This research has implications for both industrial and academic readers The industrial readers will find interesting to see what and how cross cultural organizations adopt the findings in their own competence development processes Not all the factors identified in this research are critical influence since some has a direct influence whereas other has an indirect influence It points out that there is a connection between an individuals motivation and the successful implementation of competence development programs This research brings attention to the importance of understanding cultural differences in learning situations It is often the case that it is a dilemma for cross cultural organizations to implement centrally designed programs in different local organizations Cultural differences become a barrier if they are ignored and cultural diversity an enabler to enrich the contents of programs by learning from different participants bringing their cultures behind in their backs This research also illuminates how assumptions and use of words influence the understanding and acceptance of messages and contents by participants It emphasizes the importance to have a common basic understanding of learning targets by giving explanations of certain terms critical in the introductory phase of competence development programs It is even more important if the programs aim to change behaviors and attitudes after the programs compared with programs aiming at factual knowledge and information It is not always needed for local adjustments in running training programs When the program is purely about the knowledge acquisitions like technical knowledge the importance of local adaptation becomes less critical than training programs aiming at behavioral or attitudes changes It is an absolute must for facilitators to learn about local cultures before they run any training programs Managing competence development programs in a cross cultural organization becomes even more successful when there are driving forces coming from individuals who attend the programs When individuals feel that they are drivers for competence development the effect of development programs becomes greater and the energy level in learning room is high In addition to that when there is management engagement and interest there is a boost in the energy of a learning place The maturity of an organization is of importance When the organization is new and young people are in the room of confusions and insecurity and they need more time to ventilate their feelings and thoughts Even when there is a change in the organization there are questions about those changes and there must be more time allocated for explanations and discussions so time management in programs runs smoothly Humbleness taking responsibility and respect are parts of IKEA culture People come from different cultures When individuals are humble enough to respect other cultures and also individuals take responsibility to understand different cultures there are better foundations for the successful competence development processes Organizations with a mix of different cultures aim at learning as a community Meaning can be simultaneously diverse and shared from individual to individual

International Labour Standards and Platform Work Mathias Wouters, 2021-11-25 Platform work, the matching of the supply of and demand for paid labour through an online platform, often depends on workers who operate in a grey area between the archetype of an employee and a self-employed worker. This important book explores the utility of the International Labour Organization's existing standards in governing this phenomenon. It indicates that despite their relevance, many standards have little or no impact. The standards apply to the issue but they fail to connect with it. The author shows how three ILO conventions, the Home Work Convention 1996 No 177

the Private Employment Agencies Convention 1997 No 181 and the Domestic Workers Convention 2011 No 189 can be revitalised to have an impact on the platform work debate In the course of the analysis he responds in depth to such questions as the following What are digital labour platforms What does decent work mean Did the ILO centenary fundamentally change anything What is the link between private employment services and platform work How do crowdworkers relate to homeworkers and teleworkers Are platform workers engaged in domestic work What form could a future ILO standard on platform work take Given that the ILO plans to start discussions on a potential future standard for platform work in 2022 this book will prove very useful in highlighting the issues and standards that such discussions should consider Research has shown that the techniques and tools of the platform economy have spread far beyond gig work resulting in widespread gigification and restructuring of workplace behaviours and relationships jobs and communities across the world For this and other reasons including the book s detailed analysis of issues not addressed elsewhere labour lawyers in house counsel researchers and policymakers will gain valuable insight into what decent work in the platform economy would require thus greatly broadening the discussion on this difficult to regulate phenomenon
