Memory, Family, and Self Giovanni Ciappelli, 2014-04-10 The family book a kind of diary written by and about the family for its various members was established by scholars as a genre in Italy in the 1980s Although initially regarded as an Italian genre the family book can also be found in other parts of Europe Nevertheless the genre can be traced back to Florence where it first emerged and consequently flourished with the lavish production of such documents This abundance springs from the social structure of the city where such texts were essential for establishing and cultivating the basis for the social promotion of Florentine families This book presents a reconstruction of the evolution and persistency of Tuscan family books as well as a study of several aspects of social history including reading and private libraries domestic devotion and the memory of historical events Starting with the Renaissance the investigation then broadens to the 17th 18th centuries and considers other forms of memory such as private diaries and autobiographies A final section is dedicated to the issue of memory in the egodocuments of early modern Europe This book was translated by Susan Amanda George Religion and Family in a Changing Society Penny Edgell, 2013-12-03 The 1950s religious boom was organized around the male breadwinner lifestyle in the burgeoning postwar suburbs But since the 1950s family life has been fundamentally reconfigured in the United States How do religion and family fit together today This book examines how religious congregations in America have responded to changes in family structure and how families participate in local religious life Based on a study of congregations and community residents in upstate New York sociologist Penny Edgell argues that while some religious groups may be nostalgic for the Ozzie and Harriet days others are changing knowing that fewer and fewer families fit this traditional pattern In order to keep members with nontraditional family arrangements within the congregation these innovators have sought to emphasize individual freedom and personal spirituality and actively to welcome single adults and those from nontraditional families Edgell shows that mothers and fathers seek involvement in congregations for different reasons Men tend to think of congregations as social support structures and to get involved as a means of participating in the lives of their children Women by contrast are more often motivated by the quest for religious experience and can adapt more readily to pluralist ideas about family structure This Edgell concludes may explain the attraction of men to more conservative congregations and women to nontraditional religious groups The Musicale, 1929 Sociology David M. Taking God to School Marion Maddox, 2014-02-01 Fewer Australians now practise a religion or believe in God than ever Yet our governments increasingly push conservative Christianity on our children Nearly forty per cent of secondary students attend a private school which are overwhelmingly Christian Canberra funds them heavily and sends evangelical Christian chaplains into both public and private schools Some states subsidise Christian volunteers to deliver religious instruction and some make Christian ministry a matriculation subject Some Christian schools promote Creationism and some advertise that their first priority is training soldiers to do battle for the Lord in a world which rejects His laws and dominion rather than good citizens of Australia Marion Maddox demonstrates that our governments are systematically demolishing the once proud free compulsory and secular education system in favour of taxpayer funded dogma and division The implications are unsettling for our society and for our democracy If you believe education is about teaching
