

Edith Wharton

Edith Wharton (born Edith Newbold Jones, January 24, 1862 – August 15, 1937) was an American writer and designer. Wharton drew upon her insider's knowledge of the upper-class New York "aristocracy" to portray realistically the lives and morals of the Gilded Age. In 1907, she became the first woman to win the Pulitzer Prize in Fiction, for her novel The Age of Innocence. She was inducted into the National Academy of Arts in 1928. Among her other well-known works are The House of Mirth, the novella Ethan Frome, and several notable ghost stories.

Despite not publishing her first novel until she was forty, Wharton became an extraordinarily productive writer. In addition to her 15 novels, seven novellas, and eighty-five short stories, she published poetry, books on design, travel, travel and lecture notes, and a memoir.

Many of Wharton's novels are characterized by subtle irony and a keen eye for detail. Her writing is often described as "feminine" and "refined," reflecting her upper-class background and her focus on the lives of women.

Wharton's novels, such as The House of Mirth and Ethan Frome, are set in the Gilded Age, a period of rapid industrialization and social change in the United States. Her writing often explores the complexities of class, power, and morality in this era.

Industrialization and the Arts
The rapid growth of the new urban centers during the Industrial Revolution in the late 19th century led to a new kind of literature. Writers like Wharton explored the social and moral implications of this change, often focusing on the lives of the upper class who were affected by these transformations.

Wharton's novels, such as The House of Mirth and Ethan Frome, are set in the Gilded Age, a period of rapid industrialization and social change in the United States. Her writing often explores the complexities of class, power, and morality in this era.
