Early American History review
Key Dates		Key People and Events
1776	Declaration of Independence signed on July 4, 1776 in Philadelphia for delegates to the Second Continental Congress.	Thomas Jefferson	Wrote the Declaration of Independence (signed August 2 nd 1776)
1787	U.S. Constitution written by delegates to the Constitutional Convention and approved to create the Articles of Confederation and decided to draft a new plan of government for the United States (The U.S. Constitution).	George Washington	Leader of the Continental Army during the Revolution, President of the Constitutional Convention and the first President of the U.S.
1791 - 1793	Amendment that brought over the issue of slavery, states rights, and democracy, and national differences between the North and the South.	James Madison	His famous "Federalist Papers" (written articles) argued British politics and ideas. Father of the Constitution
		Declaring Independence	Continued fight against King George III of England declaring the American colonies independent. Written in Philadelphia by Thomas Jefferson, July 4, 1776
Concepts of Democratic Government/Key Documents
Growth of representative government	The Virginia House of Burgesses was the first representative government assembly in the colonies (1775). The Mayflower Compact was a document outlining principles of self-government for settlers (1620). The 17th Amendment Ratified of the Constitution is one of the first written constitutions in the Western world.	Articles of Confederation 1776	A written plan of government for the colonies created a loose league consisting of 13 loosely independent states. Other constitutions followed including the 1787 U.S. Constitution and the 1791 Bill of Rights. The 1787 U.S. Constitution is the first written constitution in the world to have the right to amend the government. (Changes that no one passed, and they kept in national court)
Mayflower Compact 1620	Signed in England, this document provided rules to the group of the King	U.S. Constitution 1787	The U.S. Constitution established the framework for the federal government. It is the supreme law of the land. It outlines the structure of the government, including the executive, legislative, and judicial branches. It also guarantees individual rights and liberties.
English Bill of Rights 1689	Passed in 1689 in England, this document guaranteed English citizens certain rights and set a procedure for electing representatives to Parliament.	Bill of Rights 1791	The Bill of Rights consists of the first ten amendments to the Constitution. These amendments protect individual rights and liberties, including freedom of speech, religion, and the press. They also limit the power of the federal government and ensure that it does not infringe on the rights of the states and individuals.
Declaration of Independence 1776	Declared the American colonies separate from England, indicating important values. The new law created issues, and was endorsed by those (those with certain individual rights protecting the rights and the pursuit of happiness). It stated that rights governments are created among them, meaning that the government is not the source of the government's power. It also stated that the government is not the source of the government's power. It also stated that the government is not the source of the government's power.	Federal Papers	A series of essays written to support ratification of the Constitution. The essays included James Madison, John Jay, and Alexander Hamilton. They argued for the benefits of the Constitution and the need for a strong federal government. They also addressed concerns about individual rights and the role of the states.
