Hamilton Blanza, 2018-10-17 Some people I just don't value money while others have accounts full to the brim. With this in mind, think that many of some people value it while others just don't do it. How to convert from a person who can't value it to have a value that you can boast of? Saving money is just as much a part of your personality as your personality. You're a person who can save money, but you're not. Think about it with this: if your personality is not a person who can save money, but you're not. The brain is like any other body part and it can become good or bad. For example, you don't want to diet, but you don't want to drive a car in the first place. The key to getting started is small and let your inner mind set it in motion about making huge savings all the time, but I'm adopting a small, incremental approach every little bit. This principle is the most important thing to get into a habit of saving money. Letting for that 100% put in your saving account will not do the trick, especially if you are not a money person. Making a habit of small savings or not making a habit of saving will help you build a habit which would transform into a big result over a long time. You have to train your brain to let your saving become a habit. And like anything else in life, you have to train your mind to learn from your mistakes and persevere to make saving a habit and part of your routine. Little things are fruitful results. Medicare Prescription Drug Coverage For Dummies Patricia Barry, 2008-11-24 Confused about Medicare's drug coverage? You're not alone.
