The Proud Oak

Once upon a time, in a beautiful forest, there stood a large, old oak tree. He was very proud of his size and strength. He looked down on all the other trees and plants in the forest with a scornful eye.

"The best thing being, I think you, beautiful oak trees, are made of the best wood," he said to himself. "All the other trees are nothing but twigs and leaves."

One day, a small, gentle reed tree came to the oak and said to him, "I am very glad to see you, Mr. Oak. I have been thinking of you very much."

"What do you think of me?" asked the oak.

"I think you are the best tree in the forest," said the reed. "You are so strong and so beautiful. I wish I could be like you."

"I am very glad to hear that," said the oak. "But I am not sure if you are strong enough to be like me. I am a very strong tree, and I can stand up to all the winds and storms that come from the sea."

"I am very strong," said the reed. "I can stand up to all the winds and storms that come from the sea. I am very strong, and I can stand up to all the winds and storms that come from the sea."
