Christ, Kalman Flomenhaft, 2012-12-06 The past decade has brought extraordinary gains in the outlook for children stricken with cancer Though cancer remains a leading cause of death for children and young adults more victims of child hood cancer today will survive than will die The therapeutic advances and the optimism they instill have prompted researchers and clinicians to analyze the impact of cancer upon young patients and their families and to devise more effective intervention strategies Hope and survival juxtaposed with the continuing high mortality associated with certain forms of the illness add new challenges to management of the psychosocial aspects of cancer To respond to these challenges we need research as rigorous as that which continues to make inroads in treating the physical illness This specific concern for the needs of children suffering from cancer and their families has paralleled an increasing sensitivity on the part of the medical community and the public at large to the limitations of specialized high technology health care practices

The Risks of Knowing Karen Zelan, 2013-06-29 It gives me great pleasure to introduce this important and fascinating book on the internal dilemmas youngsters face in school which often cause them to stop learning We are all too ready to ascribe learning problems to an inability to learn and leave it at that This book should go a long way toward convincing us that using such simpleminded explanations and remedial efforts based on them do not work Unlike other books that identify the causes of learning disabilities in children or that detail society's impact on the so called helpless child The Risks of Knowing is an in depth study of young people who for reasons of intrapsychic conflicts and of intellectual development make a negative decision about the learning process This book is unique in its thorough analysis of the conflicts young people have with learning and in its treatment prescriptions In case after case Karen Zelan demonstrates that if young people declare themselves unable to learn it is because for some valid reasons they believe learning is dangerous The reasons that cause a decision to fail often remain unconscious until they are brought to the child's awareness When the child is helped to understand the source of any inner dilemmas both child and parents are able to find better solutions to immediate learning
