Assessing Academic Literacy in a Multilingual Society Albert Weideman, John Read, Theo du Plessis, 2020-11-02
South African universities face major challenges in meeting the needs of their students in the area of academic language and literacy. The dominant medium of instruction in the universities is English and to a much lesser extent Afrikaans but only a minority of the national population are native speakers of these languages. Nine other languages can be media of instruction in schools which makes the transition to tertiary education difficult enough in itself for students from these schools. The focus of this book is on procedures for assessing the academic language and literacy levels and needs of students not in order to exclude students from higher education but rather to identify those who would benefit from further development of their ability in order to undertake their degree studies successfully. The volume also aims to bring the innovative solutions designed by South African educators to a wider international audience.

Buckley, 2015-11-05 In the mid nineties the Alfred Glickman School was just another failing school in one of America's most violent cities Then SABIS a private for profit education provider took over Twenty years later the school is a six time silver medalist in U S News World Report's annual America's Best High Schools listing and every single graduate of the school has been offered a college place With success of this magnitude you would think that for profit managed charter schools like SABIS would be in high demand On the contrary they are fought at every turn Why is the idea of employing for profit companies to help rescue failing public schools treated with fear and hostility Stranger still why does a nation built on free enterprise refuse to embrace a free market strategy when so many students and schools would clearly benefit and with so much at stake Last Bell is a book about politics money and power It examines the charge that for profits running charter schools are in it for the money not the kids and reveals the real motives of those spreading these ideas and why they fight private sector involvement in public schools Last Bell is a reasonable voice in a polarized debate It does not call for an end to public schools but rather imagines a future in which private companies help create a competitive market for public education to boost performance turn derelict schools into centers of excellence and give parents even in the worst neighborhoods real choice and their children a future
