WRITING SERVICES - UNCW - DEPAOLO HALL, 1ST FLOOR - 962-7857

To write a good research paper, you must ask a good historical question.

History is the study of change over time. When somebody writes a history paper or book, she is offering an interpretation of how and why something changed over time.

So a historical question is one that asks how to interpret change over time.

Not every question about the past is a historical question. Historical questions address change and how to interpret that change. They must have boundaries of time, place, and people.

Bad: How did African-Americans react to World War Two?

Better: How did Southern African-Americans react to the draft in World War Two?

Best: How and why did lower class African-Americans from North and South Carolina respond to the draft from 1941-1945?

This last question focuses research on a specific group of people in a specific place during a specific time. Because there is a response over a period of time, it allows several answers, including how their response could have changed over the time period.

A good question is also one that is significant. You should be able to say why it is important to answer this question.

Your interpretation must be supported by the primary sources. You need evidence to support your interpretation. Different interpretations are possible, so why should the reader believe yours over someone else's?

To come up with a question, pick a narrow topic.

The easiest way to pick a topic – picking something general or really famous (e.g.: Civil War, Nazis, WWII) – will leave you with too broad of a topic. You need direction and focus; otherwise, you will have too much information or will get bored with what you already know. It is not that there is nothing new to learn about those kinds of topics, but if you cannot say exactly what new thing you want to learn about it, you are probably not as interested in it as you think you are. You must have an interest in an aspect of the topic or a desire to explore it from a different angle (e.g. the draft in WWII).

Try picking something that really interests you. Pick something you have questions about. Pick something you are willing to read a lot about.

Do not pick something that you have already made up your mind about, unless you are willing to change your mind based on the evidence.

History F. N. McCoy, 2023-11-10 Much agony over writing research papers originates in the failure of the academic system to teach students how to use the library and how to write formally structured English This handbook is intended to aid the student in learning these skills It provides a step by step guide to preparation of a research paper from selecting a working topic to editing the final draft McCoy attempts to develop the student's self confidence believing much writer's paralysis and graduate school attrition result because able students lack scholarly sophistication She traces one research topic through from the beginning to end showing how to use library reference materials how to outline the paper how to prepare emotionally for the act of writing how to achieve clear easily read yet formally structured English and how to edit the finished paper for the errors most irritating to professors This title is part of UC Press's Voices Revived program which commemorates University of California Press's mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice reach and impact Drawing on a backlist dating to 1893 Voices Revived makes high quality peer reviewed scholarship accessible once again using print on demand technology This title was originally published in 1974      Marius Richard A Marius,Melvin E. Page,2013-11-01 A Short Guide to Writing about History is an ideal complement for any history course intended to teach students to think and write like historians This engaging and practical text will teach students how to go beyond reporting the basic dates and facts of their history books and show them how to infuse their writing with their own ideas and unique perspective Covering brief essays and the documented resource paper the text explores the writing and researching processes different modes of historical writing including argument and offers guidelines for improving style as well as documenting sources      Term Papers Step by Step: Planning, Research, and Writing Clark Stevens,1991 Unlike most textbooks that focus only on the technical points these 50 worksheets go beyond basic term paper mechanics to help students overcome obstacles that cause stress and writing blocks They offer practical strategies for students most common problems such as negative self talk trouble budgeting time procrastination being blocked for ideas or getting bogged down in research Topics present the entire research and writing processes in easy manageable steps      Historical Research, Creative Writing, and the Past Kevin A. Morrison,Päivi Rantala,2023-07-12 Although historical research undertaken in different disciplines often requires speculation and imagination it remains relatively rare for scholars to foreground these processes explicitly as a knowing method Historical Research Creative Writing and the Past brings together researchers in a wide array of disciplines including literary studies and history ethnography design film and sound studies who employ imagination creativity or fiction in their own historical scholarship or who analyze the use of imagination creativity or fiction to make historical claims by others This volume is organized into four topical sections related to representations of the past textual and conceptual approaches material and emotional approaches speculative and experiential approaches and embodied methodologies and covers a variety of temporal periods and geographical contexts Reflecting on the methodological theoretical and ethical underpinnings of writing history creatively or speculatively the essays situate themselves within current debates over epistemology and interdisciplinarity They yield new insights into historical research methods including archival investigations and source criticisms while offering readers tangible examples of how to do history differently      Techniques of Historical Research and Writing Raji Afeez Tope,2017-07-25 Seminar paper from the year 2017 in the subject History Basics grade 1 course Cultural History language English abstract This paper aims at the task a historian has to do before publishing a scientific paper All writing assignments are intended to be read and the intended audience should always determine what is written History is no different Any account report or other piece of historical writing is intended to take effect on someone at some time It must consequently meet someone s demands Those demands can for convenience be summed up in a pair of questions Is the account true reliable complete Is it clear orderly easy to grasp and remember All the devices and methods that the researcher combines under the name of technique exist to satisfy these inescapable requirements An understanding of this technique comprises the steps taken in the process of writing history and the guiding principle albeit not codified in a single document It therefore suggests that the task before a Historian is a big one which starts with the conception of his subject idea and ends when the last word has been spelt out On whichever theme a historical research seeks to address it is usually based on primary sources and a thorough reading of secondary sources The available materials are the huge mass of words bearing on innumerable topics and subtopics within the subject Whenever possible research should be traced back to the primary sources Primary sources are the texts nearest to any subject of investigation secondary sources are always written about primary sources The most common primary sources are written documents But primary sources can also include photographs paintings sculpture architecture oral interviews statistical tables and even geography A thorough reading of secondary sources will equip the researcher with a sense of interpretation Needful is it to say that one should not rely upon one secondary source but to always incorpo
