1. Lay out a basic outline of what the essay is supposed to do. Ask questions during class to find out if there are any off limits sources. Write down any outlines you were given by the professor, as well as recommendations about what sources are acceptable by that professor. (The sources allowed by one professor may not be allowed by another, treat every class as a unique course with unique demands.)

2. Research the topic, and try to get material that is from established sources (universities, etc.) try not to get too lost in off topic research. When researching for an essay, you do not need to get drawn well off topic into material that you can't use. Be aware of where the material you are reading is from, as it may be material that sounds perfectly valid, but has no basis in provable fact, or could be from a source that isn't considered valid by the professor.

3. For all those who are beginning to write essays, there are certain rules or tips that can help them to create a perfect essay. Always include the personal experiences, as the readers are not interested in what happened with your family and friends. Do not make personal attacks, when you are writing on any issue that Far Reaches of Instruction Donald Wilcox Thomas, 2016-10-07 In schools of antiquity according to Alfred North Whitehead philosophers aspired to impart wisdom In modern colleges our humbler aim is to teach subjects The drop from divine wisdom which was the goal of the ancients to textbook knowledge of subjects which is achieved by the moderns marks an educational failure sustained through the ages He defines wisdom as the way in which knowledge is held The ways in which we hold our knowledge is the subject of these essays It is a subject too little pursued in the corridors of education where the concern today resides with the data rather than the import of the knowledge we pursue The goal of every teacher regardless of the level taught is to think about the knowledge they teach and how it informs and expands the ways in which we live Without this kind of oversight we fall into the mere mechanics of instruction failing to press it beyond the bounds of ordinary thought

Landmark Essays on Writing Across the Curriculum Charles Bazerman, David Russell, 2020-11-25 Rhetoric as a general teaching while preaching locality of action and guidelines for handling that locality has tended from the beginning to serve as a universality It has offered a generalized techne with only limited categories appropriate for all discursive situations at least for those that were not excluded from the realm of rhetoric Nonetheless from its beginnings rhetoric limited its interests to certain activity fields such as law government religion and most important the educators of leaders in these activity fields This collection presents landmarks showing where the Writing Across the Curriculum WAC and Writing in the Disciplines WID movements have gone

They have opened up a number of prospects that were impossible to see when rhetoric and composition confined their gaze to relatively few discursive activities This suggests that the rhetorical landscape is becoming more complex and interesting as well as more responsive to life in the complex differentiated societies that have emerged in the last few centuries This volume will reveal to scholars and researchers a range of possibilities for the study of disciplinary discourse and its teaching and suggest to them new prospects for the future and for the better
