Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, 30-min, 3 times per week, low-impact aerobically and resistance training program on the physical fitness of 12-year-old children. The study was conducted in a school setting. The children were divided into two groups: an experimental group and a control group. The experimental group performed the program, while the control group did not. Physical fitness was measured using a series of tests: 1000-m run, 20-m shuttle run, sit and reach, and push-ups. The results showed that the experimental group had significantly higher scores than the control group in all four tests. The 1000-m run and 20-m shuttle run tests showed a significant improvement in the experimental group, while the sit and reach and push-ups tests showed a significant improvement in the control group. The results suggest that a 12-week, 30-min, 3 times per week, low-impact aerobically and resistance training program can improve the physical fitness of 12-year-old children.
