(Re)Constructing Memory: Education, Identity, and Conflict Michelle J. Bellino,James H. Williams,2017-02-08 How do schools protect young people and call on the youngest citizens to respond to violent conflict and division operating outside and sometimes within school walls What kinds of curricular representations of conflict contribute to the construction of national identity and what kinds of encounters challenge presumed boundaries between us and them Through contemporary and historical case studies drawn from Cambodia Egypt Northern Ireland Peru and Rwanda among others this collection explores how societies experiencing armed conflict and its aftermath imagine education as a space for forging collective identity peace and stability and national citizenship In some contexts the erasure of conflict and the homogenization of difference are central to shaping national identities and attitudes In other cases collective memory of conflict functions as a central organizing frame through which citizenship and national identity are re constructed with embedded messages about who belongs and how social belonging is achieved The essays in this volume illuminate varied and complex inter relationships between education conflict and national identity while accounting for ways in which policymakers teachers youth and community members replicate resist and transform conflict through everyday interactions in educational spaces

Debates (Hansard). Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons, 2014 The Normal Accident Theory of Education

Andrew K. Milton, 2014-04-01 Much of the current debate about education too often resembles the blind men describing an elephant apprehending only a particular part of the situation or the process many analysts tell an evocative but incomplete story The so called reform discussion proceeds with a lack of depth about the nuances and realistic limitations in the institutional order of school This book argues that as regulation of schools moves further up the bureaucratic hierarchy first to state departments of education then to the national department of education the legal and institutional requirements get more intensive but less concretely useful in class rooms This bureaucratization serves to tighten the organizational environment thereby increasing the risk of normal accidents The increasing governmental management in other words makes it more likely that schools will fail to meet their goals Analyses of education are too often developed for public consumption in a fast moving political world This book examines some of the deeper organizational reasons why things don't work so well in school as well as a look at some of things that do work Most importantly the book will explain how the social and cultural expectations of what schools can do may create unrealistic hopes We as a society and schools as institutions embrace these unreasonably high hopes at our collective peril Check out Andrew's latest interview with Seattle Radio <http://kiroradio.com/listen/9972862>

National Cyber Emergencies Greg Austin, 2020-01-23 This book documents and explains civil defence preparations for national cyber emergencies in conditions of both peace and war The volume analyses the escalating sense of crisis around state sponsored cyber attacks that has emerged since 2015 when the United States first declared a national emergency in cyberspace It documents a shift in thinking in the USA from cooperative resilience oriented approaches at national level to more highly regulated state led civil defence initiatives Although the American response has been mirrored in other countries the shift is far from universal Civil defence strategies have come into play but the global experience of that has not been consistent or even that successful Containing contributions from well placed scholars and practitioners this volume reviews a selection of national experiences from the USA Australia India China Estonia and Finland and a number of key thematic issues information weapons alliance coordination and attack simulations These demonstrate a disconnect between the deepening sense of vulnerability and the availability of viable solutions at the national level Awareness of this gap may ultimately lead to more internationally oriented cooperation but the trend for now appears to be more conflictual and rooted in a growing sense of insecurity This book will be of much interest to students of cyber security homeland security disaster management and international relations as well as practitioners and policy makers
