

My Pet Parrot

I have a pet parrot named Limi. Its colour is green.

My pet parrot has been living with us for the last two years.

I remember the day when we went to a pet shop to pick a pet. My brother and me chose that parrot. Because, it obey

My Pet Parrot Essay:

Rāja-Çekhara's Karpūra-mañjarī, a drama, ed. with an essay on the life and writings of the poet by S. Konow and tr. into Engl. with notes by C.R. Lanman Rājaśekhara, 1900 Displaying Death and Animating Life Jane Desmond, 2016-08-18 The day isn't far off when no college student can graduate without having given serious thought to our relations with animals and to how to make our relations with animals less detrimental for them. Animal studies clearly is a burgeoning field. Jane Desmond has been a pioneer in the field for years: conducting research onsite at major museums, taxidermy conventions, pet cemeteries, a professional conference for pet obituary writers, attending primatology meetings, and many behind-the-scenes visits to zoos, as well as hands-on work with veterinary medicine in which she has recently earned a degree. In this book we accompany the author as she meets Kanzi the bonobo, watches an elephant paint, attends a weeklong training session on how to enrich the lives of animals in confinement, and helps prepare animal-made art for auction. Desmond focuses on the ways we relate to animals that underscore and highlight real animals with real individuality and with their own subjectivities. The book plunges us into the world of museums, taxidermy, pet cemeteries, animal obituaries, of mourning and not mourning, including roadkill as objects, and also of art markets in animal-generated art. She is committed to preserving and informing our sense of once-living, breathing, sweaty, noisy, moving animals active on the page. This is the inaugural volume in our new Animal Lives series, of which Desmond is the Directing Editor. This book beautifully exemplifies the series' goal of bridging disciplines and reaching across divisions among the humanities and social sciences to chart new territories of investigation.

The Science Delusion Curtis White, 2013-05-28 One of our most brilliant social critics, author of the bestselling The Middle Mind, presents a scathing critique of the delusions of science alongside a rousing defense of the tradition of Romanticism and the big questions. With the rise of religion critics such as Richard Dawkins and of pseudo-science advocates such as Malcolm Gladwell and Jonah Lehrer, you're likely to become a subject of ridicule if you wonder: Why is there something instead of nothing? or What is our purpose on earth? Instead, at universities around the world and in the general cultural milieu, we're all being taught that science can resolve all questions without the help of philosophy, politics, or the humanities. In short, the rich philosophical debates of the 19th century have been nearly totally abandoned, argues critic Curtis White. An atheist himself, White nonetheless calls this new turn scientism and fears what it will do to our culture if allowed to flourish without challenge. In fact, in scientism, White sees a new religion with many unexamined assumptions. In this brilliant multi-part critique, he aims at a TED talk by a distinguished neuroscientist in which we are told that human thought is merely the product of our connectome, a map of neural connections in the brain that is yet to be fully understood. He whips a widely respected physicist who argues that our new understanding of the origins of the universe obviates any philosophical inquiry, and ends with a learned defense of the tradition of Romanticism, which White believes our technology- and science-obsessed world desperately needs to rediscover. It's the only way, he argues, that we can see our world clearly and
