Lessons from the process of government formation after the 2010 general election Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Political and Constitutional Reform Committee,2011-01-28 In this report the Political and Constitutional Reform Committee gives its assessment of the process of government formation following the May 2010 general election In general the committee finds that the process went well but it also suggests some practical improvements and clarifications Among the key findings is that clearer guidance is still needed on the circumstances under which a Prime Minister should resign and when he has a duty to remain in office The report also proposes enhanced processes for ensuring that governments understand and are discouraged from breaching restrictions on their activity that apply before and immediately after general elections The committee concludes that as a coalition government s programme for government cannot be put directly to the people the House of Commons needs to have the opportunity to subject these proposals to full pre legislative scrutiny
