Barton, 2015-05-15 The hits keep coming for the American legal profession Law schools are churning out too many graduates depressing wages and constricting the hiring market Big Law firms are crumbling as the relentless pursuit of profits corrodes their core business model Modern technology can now handle routine legal tasks like drafting incorporation papers and wills reducing the need to hire lawyers tort reform and other regulations on litigation have had the same effect As in all areas of today's economy there are some big winners the rest struggle to find work or decide to leave the field altogether which leaves fewer options for consumers who cannot afford to pay for Big Law It would be easy to look at these enormous challenges and see only a bleak future but Ben Barton instead sees cause for optimism Taking the long view from the legal Wild West of the mid nineteenth century to the post lawyer bubble society of the future he offers a close analysis of the legal market to predict how lawyerly creativity and entrepreneurialism can save the profession In every seemingly negative development there is an upside The trend towards depressed wages and computerized legal work is good for middle class consumers who have not been able to afford a lawyer for years The surfeit of law school students will correct itself as the law becomes a less attractive and lucrative profession As Big Law shrinks so will the pernicious influence of billable hours which incentivize lawyers to spend as long as possible on every task rather than seeking efficiency and economy Lawyers will devote their time to work that is much more challenging and meaningful None of this will happen without serious upheaval but all of it will ultimately restore the health of the faltering profession A unique contribution to our understanding of the legal crisis the unconventional wisdom of Glass Half Full gives cause for hope in what appears to be a hopeless situation Finding the Right Capital Regulations for Insurers United States.
