Bernoulli's Principle

What is Bernoulli's Principle?

Bernoulli's principle helps explain how an aircraft can fly by using Bernoulli's effect, which states that air flowing faster over the wing of an aircraft creates a lower pressure area than the air flowing underneath. This causes an upward lift.

How does Bernoulli's Principle create lift on an airplane wing?

As air flows over the curved upper surface of the wing, it is forced to travel a longer distance than the air flowing underneath. This causes the air to move faster over the top of the wing. According to Bernoulli's principle, faster-moving air has lower pressure. This lower pressure on top of the wing creates lift.

The bottom of the wing is generally flat, which causes the air to move faster underneath than it does on top. This creates a pressure difference that also contributes to lift.

For every object in the universe, there is an equal and opposite reaction. This means that for every action, there is an equal and opposite reaction.
