Making it tangible. Learning outcomes in science education Sascha Bernholt,Knut Neumann,Peter

Nentwig,2012 One of the central features in current educational reforms is a focus on learning outcomes Many countries have established or revised standards to describe what teachers are supposed to teach and students are expected to learn. More recently the emphasis has shifted to considerations of how standards can be operationalized in order to make the outcomes of educational efforts more tangible. This book is the result of a symposium held in Kiel that was arranged by two science education groups: one at the IPN Leibniz Institute for Science and Mathematics Education at the University of Kiel in Germany and the other at the University of York UK. The seminar brought together renowned experts from 12 countries with different notions of the nature and quality of learning outcomes. The aim was to clarify central conceptions and approaches for a better understanding among the international science education community. The book is divided into five parts. In Part A the organizers set the scene describing the rationale for arranging the symposium. Part B provides a broad overview about different approaches, challenges, and pitfalls on the road to the clarification of meaningful and fruitful learning outcomes. The set of papers in Part C provides deep insights into different, although comparable approaches which aim to frame, to assess, and to promote learning and learning outcomes in science education. Smaller projects are presented as well as broad coordinated national programs. The papers in Part D outline the individual historical development from different national perspectives reflecting the deficits and problems that led to current reforms. Finally, a summary of the organizers' analyses and conclusions from different vantage points.

The topics covered include Advanced design technology, Energy and chemical engineering, Energy and environmental engineering, Energy science. Primary Science Learning for Children, Teachers, and Communities Sarah Earle, School Development Through Teacher Research Inger Eriksson, Mlangi Osaki, 2018-08-17. School Development through Teacher Research: Lesson and Learning Studies in Sweden and Tanzania presents the results from a three-year long joint research project conducted by educational researchers from Tanzania and Sweden. Even though the country contexts differ in social, economic, as well as educational conditions including teacher education and classroom standards, many recurrent education challenges are shared. These include the tendency to make educational reforms with little or no input from professionals. The new educational reforms in both countries put a much higher responsibility on teachers; teachers must be able to organise teaching that enables all students to develop required abilities/competencies. Thus, teachers need tools to develop knowledge that can contribute to their professional knowledge base. With an overall interest in issues of teaching and action research, this joint project aimed to use Lesson and Learning Study as models for developing and improving the quality of teaching and learning in schools. The research project was realised through four case studies in each country with a focus on students' development of specific capabilities and values.
