

LETTER TO MY BROTHER

Dear bro,

It's the most anticipated day of the year come again but the tragedy of this day is that unlike all the years that we have spent this day together this year we are so far apart. It feels off kilter and sad all at the same time. I wish we had been together this Rakhi as well, doing all our conventional leg pulling and teasing the way we used to.

I am blessed to have a brother like you and the words won't justify the amount of respect and love I have for you. As mother fondly recalls the time when I first arrived, you were scared to hold me, you were scared that this miniature baby would crumble if you so much as touch her and she would somehow vanish. You were fascinated by my small hands and spend counting each finger twice a day. A four year old boy got a little toy to play with and he was ecstatic. This baby grew up to be your partner-in-crime, playmate, little nuisance and sometimes a total pain in the ass.

You made me what I am today. You made me strong, wild, independent and sassy. We have made plethora of memories together and played countless of made up games throughout the day and night. If I never had your calming presence, I would have been a sad case of classic spoilt brat but you grounded me.

We shared our own secret world of imaginary pirates, you were Peter Pan and I was one of the lost boys, fighting captain Hook, climbing imaginary mountains, going on epic quests for lost treasures. It was just you, me and our backyard. How can I forget all the senseless things we tried and got trashed within the inch of our life?
