Constructed-Response Test Questions

Samuel A. Livingston, 2009. To many people, standardized testing means multiple choice testing. However, some tests contain questions that require the test taker to produce the answer rather than simply choosing it from a list. The required response can be as simple as the writing of a single word as complex as the design of a laboratory experiment to test a scientific hypothesis. These types of test questions taken together are referred to as constructed response questions. This issue of ETS Research Report 2 discusses how test takers' responses are translated into numerical scores and 3 the limitations of constructed response questions and how the recent technological developments are helping some of those limitations.
