UNIT 3: CULTURAL PATTERNS AND PROCESSES

Cultural landscapes are combinations of physical features, agricultural and industrial practices, religious and linguistic characteristics, evidence of permanent settlements, and other expressions of culture (including traditional and postmodern architecture and land use patterns).

Attitudes toward ethnicity and gender, including the role of women in the workforce, ethnic neighborhoods, and religious communities and trends help shape the use of space in a given way.

- Cultural landscapes patterns
  - Built environment
  - Evidence of traditional cultural features and their cultural environment
  - The built environment as the physical manifestation of the attitudes of humans
- Expressions of culture in the built environment
  - Physical features: natural features and built features including their ethnic origins
  - Agriculture and related practices
  - Religious features: religious buildings, religious practices, religious symbols
  - Language: evidence of linguistic features, dialects, and the role of language in the built environment
  - Ethnicity: evidence of ethnic neighborhoods and ethnic communities and their cultural landscapes
- Ethnic neighborhoods: trends that suggest that an area can be occupied by different groups of people, and that some of these groups may be more or less visible than others, but that the area group may be more or less visible than others

Language, ethnicity and identity contribute to a sense of place, which is the global cultural landscape.

Language, ethnicity and religion are factors creating centrifugal and centripetal forces.

- Centrifugal forces that pull people apart
  - Ethnic neighborhoods, evidence of linguistic features and their cultural environment
- Centripetal forces that pull people together
  - Ethnic neighborhoods, evidence of linguistic features and their cultural environment

| Language                                                                                                                              | Religion                                                                                                                               | Ethnicity                                                                                                                                                  |

Religion and expression - including religious, geographical, and ethnic expression - are types of differences.

Differences among people in a culture include some types:

- Religious differences: people of one religion may have different beliefs and practices from people of another religion
- Geographic differences: people of one region may have different beliefs and practices from people of another region
- Ethnic differences: people of one ethnicity may have different beliefs and practices from people of another ethnicity
- Language differences: people of one language may have different beliefs and practices from people of another language
- Ethnic differences: people of one ethnicity may have different beliefs and practices from people of another ethnicity

Interactions between and among cultural traits and larger global forces can lead to new forms of cultural expression, for example, globalization and digital media.

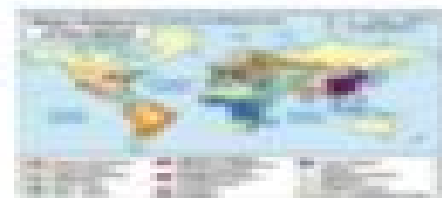

- Globalization: evidence of the process by which economic and cultural forces are becoming more interconnected and integrated
- Digital media: evidence of the process by which cultural forces are becoming more interconnected and integrated

Globalization, immigration and trade helped to shape patterns and practices of culture.

- Globalization and immigration: evidence of the process by which economic and cultural forces are becoming more interconnected and integrated
- Trade: evidence of the process by which economic and cultural forces are becoming more interconnected and integrated

- Globalization and immigration: evidence of the process by which economic and cultural forces are becoming more interconnected and integrated
- Trade: evidence of the process by which economic and cultural forces are becoming more interconnected and integrated
