Capitalizing on Investments in Science and Technology National Academy of Engineering, National Academy of Sciences, Institute of Medicine, National Academy of Sciences, National Academy of Engineering, Institute of Medicine, Committee on Science, Engineering, and Public Policy, 1999-04-18 Although the United States is currently capitalizing on its investment in science and technology effectively, there remains much room for improvement. This volume identifies the ingredients for success in capitalizing on such investments to produce national benefits, assesses current U.S. performance, and identifies future challenges. The book cites specific examples and examines several cross-cutting issues. It explores the possibility that the national research portfolio is losing diversity as a result of less long-term research in critical fields such as networking and materials. It also examines the implications of imbalances in the supply of and demand for science and engineering talent in emerging interdisciplinary fields such as bioinformatics. Network Science National Research Council, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Board on Army Science and Technology, Committee on Network Science for Future Army Applications, 2006-01-15 The military is currently attempting to develop itself into a force capable of network-centric operations. While this effort has highlighted the military's dependence on interacting networks, it has also shown that there is a huge gap between what we need to know about networks and our fundamental knowledge about network behavior. This gap makes the military vision of NCO problematic. To help address this problem, the Army asked the NRC to find out whether identifying and funding a new field of network science could help close this gap. This report presents an examination of networks and the military, an analysis of the promise, content, and challenges of network science, and an assessment of approaches to creating value from network science.

The Sandbox Investment David L. Kirp, 2009-06-30 Listen to a short interview with David L. Kirp Host Chris Gondek Producer Heron Crane The rich have always valued early education and for the past forty years millions of poor kids have had Head Start. Now more and more middle class parents have realized that a good preschool is the smartest investment they can make in their children's future in a competitive world. As The Sandbox Investment shows, their needs are key to the growing call for universal preschool. Writing with the verve of a magazine journalist and the authority of a scholar, David L. Kirp makes the ideal guide to this quiet movement. He crouches in classrooms where committed teachers engage lively four year olds and reveals the findings of an extraordinary longitudinal study that shows the life changing impact of preschool. He talks with cutting edge researchers from neuroscience and genetics to economics whose findings increasingly show how powerfully early childhood shapes the arc of children's lives. Kids first politics is smart economics: paying for preschool now can help save us from paying for unemployment, crime and emergency rooms later. As Kirp reports from the inside, activists and political leaders have turned this potent idea into campaigns and policies in red and blue states alike. The Sandbox Investment is the first full story of a campaign that asks Americans to endorse a vision of society that does well by doing good. For anyone who is interested in politics or the social uses of research, for anyone who's interested in the children's futures, it's a compelling read.
