Handcrafted Hope

by David

Benjamin Adams and Carolyn Johnson worked as volunteers in Ghana, West Africa. Ben and Carol wanted to help the World Bank create good jobs for the themselves and for their children. In 2000, Ben and Carol formed an organization called Global Mission. The purpose of Global Mission is to help the people of Ghana and to support handcrafted products. In other words, Global Mission helps people open businesses which produce items such as beaded baskets and bags. The Ghana people are also given assistance in selling their goods to people and places around the world. The items these people sell are part of the Global Mission organization. They are products that the people of Ghana make.

All of the products made and sold by the Ghana people are handcrafted and handmade. Handmade work done by hand is called handmade. Although the products are made by hand, each one is unique or unique.

One hand-crafted item is called a basket. The basket is made from woven fabric, glass, and metal glass. The color of the basket is determined by the color of the glass used. The glass is made, placed in a hole, and held in place by the metal. The basket is made to hold things in the house. In the house, the basket is used to hold things from other places. The basket is made and sold by the people of Ghana.
