

Autobiographical Essay

My name is Jeremy Maggi. I am a teacher at Orange Glen High School in Escondido, California. I am writing an autobiographical essay, a story about an event in my life and how it changed me. I am writing about a scary meeting I had with a rattlesnake when I was younger to show what I learned and to tell how this event was important to me.

It all happened one summer day in 1995 when I was ten years old. At that time, I was living in Valley Center, California with my parents and my brother. Our house was out in the country and there were many wild plants and animals, and I loved to go on walks with my father through the wilderness. On that day, my father, my younger brother, and I were taking a walk in the bushes outside my house. I wanted to lead, so I walked in front, my brother followed me, and my father was in the back. It was a beautiful day when we started walking; the deep blue sky was above us, the sun shined on us from over our heads, and all around you could hear the buzz of insects and the rustle of the wind on the leaves of the beautiful green bushes. I could smell the lovely smell of the summer flowers all around me.

Suddenly, and without warning, my father rushed to the front and pushed me aside. "Hey! What the heck!" I thought. But, just then, I heard a terrible buzz from where I had just been about to step. I looked and I saw a giant, red diamond-back rattlesnake in the path where I had been walking! His rattle was shaking and he was very angry. I could see his tongue flick in and out of his mouth. His narrow eyes looked at me. I felt my heart pounding in my chest. The cold wind blew on my sweating skin. Now I knew why my dad had pushed me.

We sat there for a while because we didn't want the snake to strike and attack us, and the snake stayed there, too, because he was afraid of us also. We called to our neighbor, Ken, who happened to be out, and he came with a shovel to kill the snake. Clang! With one hit he cut off the snake's head. Ken grabbed the snake by the tail and carried it back home, its blood still dripping on the ground.

Bury Me at the Marketplace N. Chabani Manganyi, David Attwell, 2009-11-01 When Chabani Manganyi published the first edition of selected letters twenty five years ago as a companion volume to Exiles and Homecomings A Biography of Es'kia Mphahlele the idea of Mphahlele's death was remote and poetic The title Bury Me at the Marketplace suggested that immortality of a kind awaited Mphahlele in the very coming and going of those who remember him and whose lives he touched It suggested too the energy and magnanimity of Mphahlele the man whose personality and intellect as a writer and educator would carve an indelible place for him in South Africa's public sphere That death has now come and we mourn it Manganyi's words at the time have acquired a new significance in the symbolic marketplace he noted the drama of life continues relentlessly and the silence of death is unmasked for all time The silence of death is certainly unmasked in this volume in its record of Mphahlele's rich and varied life his private words his passions and obsessions his arguments his loves hopes achievements and yes even some of his failures Here the reader will find many facets of the private man translated back into the marketplace of public memory Despite the personal nature of the letters the further horizons of this volume are the contours of South Africa's literary and cultural history the international affiliations out of which it has been formed particularly in the diaspora that connects South Africa to the rest of the African continent and to the black presence in Europe and the United States This selection of Mphahlele's own letters has been greatly expanded it has also been augmented by the addition of letters from Mphahlele's correspondents among them such luminaries as Langston Hughes and Nadine Gordimer It seeks to illustrate the networks that shaped Mphahlele's personal and intellectual life the circuits of intimacy intellectual inquiry of friendship scholarship and solidarity that he created and nurtured over the years The letters cover the period from November 1943 to April 1987 forty four of Mphahlele's mature years and most of his active professional life The correspondence is supplemented by introductory essays from the two editors by two interviews conducted with Mphahlele by Manganyi and by Attwell's insightful explanatory notes

Apparitions of the Self Janet Gyatso, 2020-11-10 Apparitions of the Self is a groundbreaking investigation into what is known in Tibet as secret autobiography an exceptional rarely studied literary genre that presents a personal exploration of intimate religious experiences In this volume Janet Gyatso translates and studies the outstanding pair of secret autobiographies by the famed Tibetan Buddhist visionary Jigme Lingpa 1730-1798 whose poetic and self-conscious writings are as much about the nature of his own identity memory and the undecidabilities of autobiographical truth as they are narrations of the actual content of his experiences Their translation in this book marks the first time that works of this sort have been translated in a Western language Gyatso is among the first to consider Tibetan literature from a comparative perspective examining the surprising fit as well as the misfit of Western literary theory with Tibetan autobiography She examines the intriguing questions of why Tibetan Buddhists produced so many autobiographies far more than other Asian Buddhists and how autobiographical self-assertion is possible even while Buddhists believe that the self is ultimately an illusion Also explored are Jigme Lingpa's historical milieu his revelatory visions of the ancient Tibetan dynasty and his meditative practices of personal cultivation The book concludes with a study of the subversive female figure of the Dakini in Jigme Lingpa's writings and the implications of her gender her sexuality and her unsettling discourse for the autobiographical subject in Tibet

A Novel Marketplace Evan Brier, 2012-02-25 As television transformed American culture in the 1950s critics feared the influence of this newly pervasive mass medium on the nation's literature While many studies have addressed the rhetorical response of artists and intellectuals to mid-twentieth-century mass culture the relationship between the emergence of this culture and the production of novels has gone largely unexamined In A Novel Marketplace Evan Brier illuminates the complex ties between postwar mass culture and the making marketing and reception of American fiction Between 1948 when television began its ascendancy and 1959 when Random House became a publicly owned corporation the way American novels were produced and distributed changed considerably Analyzing a range of mid-century novels including Paul Bowles's The Sheltering Sky Ray Bradbury's Fahrenheit 451 Sloan Wilson's The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit and Grace Metalious's Peyton Place Brier reveals the specific strategies used to carve out cultural and economic space for the American novel just as it seemed most under threat During this anxious historical moment the book business underwent an improbable expansion by capitalizing on an economic boom and a rising population of educated consumers and by forming institutional alliances with educators and cold warriors to promote reading as both a cultural and political good A Novel Marketplace tells how the book trade and the novelists themselves successfully positioned their works as embattled holdouts against an oppressive mass culture even as publishers formed partnerships with mass culture institutions that foreshadowed the multimedia mergers to come in the 1960s As a foil for and a partner to literary institutions mass media corporations assisted in fostering the novel's development as both culture and commodity

Narrative and Self-Understanding Garry L. Hagberg, 2019-11-15 This exciting new edited collection bridges the gap between narrative and self understanding The problem of self knowledge is of universal interest the nature or character of its achievement has been one continuing thread in our philosophical tradition for millennia Likewise the nature of storytelling the assembly of individual parts of a potential story into a coherent narrative structure has been central to the study of literature But how do we gain knowledge from an artform that is by definition fictional by definition not a matter of ascertained fact as this applies to the understanding of our lives When we see ourselves in the mimetic mirror of literature what we see may not just be a matter of identifying with a single protagonist but also a matter of recognizing long form structures long arc narrative shapes that give a place to and thus make sense of the individual bits of experience that we place into those structures But of course at precisely this juncture a question arises do we make that sense or do we discover it The twelve chapters brought together here lucidly and steadily reveal how the matters at hand are far more intricate and interesting than any such dichotomy could accommodate This is a book that investigates the ways in which life and literature speak to each other

Distant Suffering Luc Boltanski,1999-10-13
Distant Suffering first published in 1999 examines the moral and political implications for a spectator of the distant suffering of others as presented through the media What are the morally acceptable responses to the sight of suffering on television for example when the viewer cannot act directly to affect the circumstances in which the suffering takes place Luc Boltanski argues that spectators can actively involve themselves and others by speaking about what they have seen and how they were affected by it Developing ideas in Adam Smith's moral theory he examines three rhetorical topics available for the expression of the spectator's response to suffering the topics of denunciation and of sentiment and the aesthetic topic The book concludes with a discussion of a crisis of pity in relation to modern forms of humanitarianism A possible way out of this crisis is suggested which involves an emphasis and focus on present suffering

Contemporary Somali Diasporic Literature
Denish Odanga,2025-11-10 This book considers how the literature of the Somali diaspora deploys themes of ambivalent belonging in cosmopolitan spaces The book starts by building a picture of cosmopolitanism thinking from the European Enlightenment through to key postcolonial thinkers like Anthony Appiah Achille Mbembe and Arjun Appadurai However the book shows that far from a picture of diverse groups coming together in mutual respect in fact cosmopolitanism is affected by mutual phobias between migrants and their host cultures These phobias stem from ethno racism Islamophobia classicism clannism xenophobia and mutual superiority and inferiority complexes In building this analysis the book considers key texts from Ayaan Hirsi Yasmeeen Maxamuud Jonny Steinberg Nuruddin Farah and Santur Ghedi with settings that range from North America Canada Norway Holland Germany South Africa Saudi Arabia to East Africa Considering literature on the Somali diaspora within the context of major cosmopolitan theories and postcolonial inflexions this book is an important contribution to contemporary sociopolitical conversations and will be of interest to researchers across literary and cultural studies
