Ghosts of Archive Verne Harris, 2020-12-21 Ghosts of Archive draws on the discourses of deconstruction intersectionality and archetypal psychology to mount an argument that archive is fundamentally and structurally spectral and that the work of archive is justice Drawing on more than 20 years of the author's research on deconstruction and archive the book posits archive as an essential resource for social justice activism and as a source or location of soul for individuals and communities Through explorations of what Jacques Derrida termed hauntology Harris invites a listening to the call for justice in conceptual spaces that are non disciplinary He argues that archive is both constructed in relation to and beset by ghosts ghosts of the living of the dead and of those not yet born and that attention should be paid to them Establishing a unique nexus between a deconstructive intersectionality and traditions of memory for justice in struggles against oppression from South Africa and elsewhere the book makes a case for a deconstructive praxis in today's archive Offering new ideas about spectrality banditry and archival activism Ghosts of Archive should appeal to those working in the disciplines of archival science information studies and psychology It should also be essential reading for those with an interest in social justice issues transitional justice history philosophy memory studies and postcolonial studies

Higher Education and Capacity Building in Africa Hanne Kirstine Adriansen, Lene Møller Madsen, Stig Jensen, 2015-11-06 Higher education has recently been recognized as a key driver for societal growth in the Global South and capacity building of African universities is now widely included in donor policies The question is how do capacity building projects affect African universities researchers and students Universities and their scientific knowledges are often seen to have universal qualities therefore capacity building may appear straight forward Higher Education and Capacity Building in Africa contests such universalistic notions Inspired by ideas about the geography of scientific knowledge it explores what role specific places and relationships have in knowledge production and analyses how cultural experiences are included and excluded in teaching and research Thus the different chapters show how what constitutes legitimate scientific knowledge is negotiated and contested In doing so the chapters draw on discussions about the hegemony of Western thought in education and knowledge production The authors own experiences with higher education capacity building and knowledge production are discussed and used to contribute to the reflexive turn and rise of auto ethnography This book is a valuable resource for researchers and postgraduate students in education development studies African studies and human geography as well as anthropology and history The PhD

Experience in African Higher Education John Mashayamombe, Ruth Murambadoro, uMbuso weNkosi, 2022-11-08 The PhD Experience in African Higher Education edited by Ruth Murambadoro John Mashayamombe and uMbuso weNkosi addresses the growing call to invest in the humanities and social sciences by exploring the nature of doctoral training in select institutions of higher learning in South Africa In the past two decades South Africa has become a key player in the global higher education landscape and dubbed the hub for doctoral training in Africa because of its developed educational infrastructure and highly ranked universities Given South Africa s positioning the contributors in this volume argue that the government donors universities and faculty have a socio legal duty to ensure that doctoral programs in the humanities and social sciences are not offered to amass numbers of African graduates but are grounded on equipping students with both hard and soft skills necessary to succeed This is achieved by offering skills training and research apprenticeships fostered in communities of practice because as the contributors show the humanities and social sciences are the backbone of society Furthermore they argue that treating doctoral candidates as equal partners is emancipatory because intellectual projects are best nurtured through collaborative learning Global Development of the Community College Model Carmen L.

McCrink, Heidi Whitford, Natasha C. Stubbs, 2017-03-13 While the community college is a longstanding institutional type within the U S the success of this model has recently garnered international attention As countries outside the U S grapple with issues regarding access and affordability of higher education opportunity the concept of the community college has gained traction This issue explores The global expansion and development of the community college model in various countries and regions around the world Insights into the establishment and sustainability of these institutions in other countries through research and analysis and Case studies that focus on the development and implementation process of community colleges amid various social political and economic contexts This is the 177th volume of this Jossey Bass quarterly report series Essential to the professional libraries of presidents vice presidents deans and other leaders in today s open door

Going to University Case, Jennifer, Marshall, Delia, 2018-02-09 Around the world more young people than ever before are attending university Student numbers in South Africa have doubled since democracy and for many families higher education is a route to a better future for their children But alongside the overwhelming demand for higher education questions about its purposes have intensified Deliberations about the curriculum culture and costing of public higher education abound from student activists academics parents civil society and policy makers We know from macro research that South African graduates generally have good employment prospects But little is known at a detailed level about how young people actually make use of their university experiences to craft their life courses And even less is known about what happens to those who drop out This accessible book brings together the rich life stories of 73 young people six years after they began their university studies It traces how going to university influences not only their employment options but also nurtures the agency needed to chart their own way and to engage critically with the world around them The book offers deep insights into the ways in which public higher education is both a private and public good and it provides significant conclusions pertinent to anyone who works in and cares about universities

Decolonising Journalism Education in South Africa Ms Zubeida Jaffer ,Prof. Ylva Rodney-Gumede ,Dr Mvuso Ponono ,Prof. Colin Chasi ,2021-12-20 With 342 years of colonialism and apartheid in South Africa a book of this calibre is essential to contribute to scholarly debates on the decolonisation of the media After the democratic dispensation in 1994 there was a narrow pursuit of transformation and media freedom while neglecting decolonisation patriarchal tendencies and the plight of black women journalists who are often vilified while discharging their duties It was two decades after democracy that the RhodesMustFall movement which later evolved into FeesMustFall movement reignited debates on decoloniality in the academia Moreover the book is published during the second wave of FeesMustFall student protests and the demand for decolonised free education is inevitable as no permanent solution to student funding crisis was crafted In the same vein the book advocates for decolonised pedagogy in universities including journalism curriculum That ownership of the media is still skewed towards white and with only few black companies gradually joining the industry also brings into doubt media freedom editorial independence ethics and integrity among media practitioners Therefore the decoloniality movement seeks to confront these structural challenges head on via dialogue to ensure the integrity of the journalism profession Decolonising journalism in South Africa is published at a time in which journalism serves a watchdog and a critique of a democratic government and needs to follow a bottom up social justice approach and become a voice to the voiceless Therefore this book seeks to revolutionise the media in a way that even the language of reporting of certain issues needs to be changed to a balanced kind of reporting characterised by principles of no fear or favour
