

Ethnogeography: A Future for Primary Geography and Primary Geography Research?

Fran Martin

Senior Lecturer in Primary Education, University College Worcester

A common theme of the papers presented in this forum is that of the importance of listening to children's voices. The key messages conveyed by the authors are synthesised in this paper and the implications for the development of the subject and research within it are considered. This is then placed in the context of some recent doctoral research that draws on beginning teachers' voices and proposes a new way of conceptualising primary geography – ethnogeography – that might set an agenda for the future development and direction of primary geography research.

Keywords: children, voices, curriculum, perceptions, ethnogeography, imagination

Children's Voices

In the opening paper Catling puts forward a compelling argument for listening to children's voices, raising issues for the development of primary geography research that can be summarised under four broad headings:

- teaching for learning;
- resources;
- the curriculum;
- the future of the subject.

The first three will be examined briefly, drawing on the key messages conveyed by the authors in this publication, and an initial agenda for future research will be identified. The remainder of the paper will examine the subject issue in greater depth, drawing on some recent doctoral research into beginning teachers' development as teachers of primary geography.

Teaching for learning

As part of the agenda of building on 'where children are' it is crucial for us to identify their current levels of knowledge, understanding, skills and attitudes. In terms of children's conceptions and misconceptions of the physical world, Mackintosh and Halocho demonstrate the need for teachers to elicit children's alternative frameworks about rivers and coastal processes. Mackintosh goes on to suggest that teachers can use this information to take a bottom-up approach to progression in learning that uses concept ladders, rather than the more traditional top-down approach which focuses on progression in teaching. Halocho, Mackintosh and Owens stress the importance of outdoor learning as a key element in

Boal, D.N. Livingstone, 2003-09-02 Placing human action and perception at the centre of the subject this book considers the effects of mankind on the environment drawing particularly from William Kirk's work on the behavioural environment model Reviewing Kirk's original model in light of recent ideological debate and extensive new evidence this collection of essays from leading names in the field shows that a behavioural approach is essential in understanding human geography and man's relationship with the ecological environment

A Guide to Information Sources in the Geographical Sciences Stephen Goddard, 1983-01-01 Geography is a wide ranging discipline and the number of information sources available is truly enormous These include printed books and journal articles maps satellite photographs archives statistical information and much else One particular problem facing geographers is that when one studies a foreign country information may be available only in the foreign country and difficult to obtain This book discusses the information sources available to geographers Urban Regimes and Strategies A. G. Papadopoulos, 1996-11-15 If a city based its planning decisions on the needs of an international bureaucracy rather than on the traditional needs of local residents and businesses how would that city change Alex G Papadopoulos addresses this question with a detailed study of how the nineteenth century quarters of Leopold and Nord Est in Brussels have been transformed materially and functionally since the European Communities decided to locate their administrative headquarters there in 1957 Drawing on game and rational choice theories spatial analysis and urban morphology studies Papadopoulos analyzes how the landscape of Brussels's center has evolved over the last three decades under the influence of successive coalitions of local and foreign elites. He describes how international real estate developers form ephemeral flexible and specialized regimes of cooperation with governmental organizations at all levels and with special interest lobbies to carry out major urban projects while local neighborhood groups, conservationists and political factions such as the Green Party oppose them with qualitatively similar regimes of resistance.

Four Studies on the Economic Development of Turkey John F. Kolars, Dankwart A. Rustow, Frederic C. Shorter, Oktay Yenai, 2013-07-04 First Published in 1967 This volume brings together four studies that seek to update the known images of the Ottoman Turks and of a Republican Turkey. For an understanding of present day Turkey the traditional sources are central but they no longer stand alone or even unchallenged. Today scholars are bringing the perspectives and tools of economics, sociology, anthropology, politics, cultural geography and other social disciplines to the study of Turkey. Their findings are broadening and deepening knowledge concerning Turkey's history and her present position.

Nature's Metropolis: Chicago and the Great West William Cronon, 2009-11-02 A Finalist for the Pulitzer Prize and Winner of the Bancroft Prize. No one has written a better book about a city. Nature's Metropolis is elegant testimony to the proposition that economic, urban, environmental and business history can be as graceful, powerful and fascinating as a novel.

Cities In Space Prof David Herbert, Dr Colin Thomas, 2013-11-26 This is the third major revision of a text first published in 1982 with the title Urban Geography: A First Approach and in 1990 as Cities in Space: City as Place. The study of urban geography remains an important part of the geographical curriculum both in schools and in higher education. This book analyses life in an urban society and in a world which is being transformed by the processes of urbanization. To study urban geography is to study environments and phenomena significant to our everyday lives. This is an introductory text which aims to present both more traditional and newer approaches to urban geography in an accessible and educational way.

discusses how these should be dealt with in the future More specific problems are also examined the impact created by new shopping schemes the decline of small shops and related activities the conflict over transport demands and provisions and the special physical needs of particular urban and rural environments Throughout the argument is supported by detailed examples of particular developments Originally published 1984 Natural Hazard Management in Coastal Areas ,1976

Reason in a Dark Time Dale Jamieson,2014-02-28 From the 1992 Rio Earth Summit to the 2009 Copenhagen Climate Conference there was a concerted international effort to stop climate change Yet greenhouse gas emissions increased atmospheric concentrations grew and global warming became an observable fact of life In this book philosopher Dale Jamieson explains what climate change is why we have failed to stop it and why it still matters what we do Centered in philosophy the volume also treats the scientific historical economic and political dimensions of climate change Our failure to prevent or even to respond significantly to climate change Jamieson argues reflects the impoverishment of our systems of practical reason the paralysis of our politics and the limits of our cognitive and affective capacities The climate change that is underway is remaking the world in such a way that familiar comforts places and ways of life will disappear in years or decades rather than centuries Climate change also threatens our sense of meaning since it is difficult to believe that our individual actions matter The challenges that climate change presents go beyond the resources of common sense morality it can be hard to view such everyday acts as driving and flying as presenting moral problems Yet there is much that we can do to slow climate change to adapt to it and restore a sense of agency while living meaningful lives in a changing world
