Between Mission and Market Daniel Rosenberg, 2017-04-26 Between Mission and Market: The Freshman Year in a Corporate Age focuses on the arrival of college freshmen at the moment of the transformation it uses Adelphi University in suburban New York City to study an attempt to resolve first year difficulties. As higher education institutions turn into enterprises run on business models the pressures of getting into college including the taking of the SAT and ACT have induced stress, addictions, eating disorders, drug use, and mental problems. However, special programs to ease the first year transition through counseling and support are run as cheaply as possible. This book confronts some of the cardinal controversies in higher education particularly those affecting first year students: high stakes testing in general particularly the SAT, the intensification of student debt and the financial sentence imposed upon all who incur it, and the dramatic pressures placed upon freshmen as they transition to college.

Learning from Animations in Science Education Len Unsworth, 2020-11-10 This book examines educational semiotics and the representation of knowledge in school science. It discusses the strategic integration of animation in science education. It explores how learning through the creation of science animations takes place as well as how animation can be used in assessing students' science learning. Science education animations are ubiquitous in a variety of different online sites including perhaps the most popularly accessed YouTube site and are also routinely included as digital augmentations to science textbooks. They are popular with students and teachers and are a prominent feature of contemporary science teaching. The proliferation of various kinds of science animations and the ready accessibility of sophisticated resources for creating them have emphasized the importance of research into various areas: the nature of the semiotic construction of knowledge in the animation design; the development of critical interpretation of available animations; the strategic selection and use of animations to optimize student learning; student creation of science
